Public Defender Caseload Soars

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If the caseload handled by the Lancaster County Public Defender's office continues to rise at the present rate, the total in 1973 may be at least five times the number handled two years ago — the first year the office was in operation.

According to figures released by Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan, a total of 272 cases of various types was handled by his office for the first two months of 1973. This compared with 316 for the entire year in 1971 and 749 during 1972.

If the caseload continues at the rate of 136 per month, the total for 1973 could be projected at 1,732 which is a 448% increase over 1971 and a 231% increase over last year.

A major increase in the misdemeanor load resulted from Supreme Court rulings last summer requiring that indigents be furnished counsel on misdemeanors.

In the first two months of 1973 the public defender's office was handed 94 misdemeanor cases for a monthly average of 47 while the total number handled for seven months in 1972 was 150 for a monthly average of 21 cases.

The felony caseload has also mounted with 85 for the first two months this year or an average of 43 cases while the monthly average for 1972 was 30 – double the monthly average figure of 15 for 1971.

The monthly average in handling juvenile cases appears to be doubling each year with the average so far this year being 27; the average in 1972, 14, while the average in 1971 was eight.

The public defender's office has already handled 39 mental health cases this year as compared to 67 for the entire year of 1972 and 25 for 1971.

On this basis, the monthly average has gone from two in 1971 to 19 to date this year.

According to Gaughan, his office also must handle some divorce cases for incarcerated indigent persons.

He predicts that if the current rate of caseload continues he will need another full time and, possibly another part-time deputy.

His office now has four full-time and one part-time staff members plus a law clerk and secretary. Gaughan draws an annual salary of $15,000 while his three full-time deputies make $13,186, $15,386, and $10,000, respectively. The part-time deputy is paid $5,500 per year.

Gaughan estimates that each misdemeanor requires an average of about one and one-half hours, while as much as 10 hours are spent on each felony case which does not go to trial.

If a felony case is tried in Lancaster District Court, Gaughan estimates that his office spends as much as between 35 and 40 hours on the case including preparing for and trial of the matter.

Although the county has allowed the public defender's office staff the privilege of private practice, Gaughan and his deputies contend that the volume of work of the office requires their doing any private practice they may have during evenings and on weekends.

Shown below are figures comparing the 1973 caseloads of types of cases handled by that office with 1972 and 1971:

	1973 (Two Months)	1972	1971

Problem Solved

Skegness, England (AP) – Reginald Barnard and his wife, Hilda, solved the problem of holiday traffic jams by packing five suitcases into their car and driving 150 yards to their favorite hotel for a week's vacation. "There's no pleasure driving on the roads these days," Barnard said. "This way we will not be tired after our drive home."

Indians Agree To Talks

Plan Offered To End Wounded Knee Siege

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Leaders of the militant Indians holding Wounded Knee and government officials met for more than two hours on Sunday to discuss proposals for ending the occupation.

The chief U.S. negotiator, Asst. Atty. Gen. Harlington Wood, said afterward another meeting was scheduled Monday.

No formal briefing was given newsmen, but Wood told reporters as he stepped out of the tepee-style chapel where they met: "I think that as long as we're talking together, we're making progress. We're just trying to do our best to get it over with. They've been very decent to me during the negotiations."

Earlier, leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM) released what they said were details of a government proposal for ending the 19-day takeover of the historic village. The proposal centers on three points, according to the AIM version:

— The government promised to send two high-ranking Interior Department officials to Sioux Falls, S.D., to consult with up to seven AIM leaders. The Indians would be given safe passage to and from Wounded Knee. The Interior officials would be Marvin L. Franklin, assistant to the secretary for Indian affairs, and William Rogers, deputy assistant for Indian affairs.

— When those talks begin, Indians at the village would collect and stack their weapons, then go to government roadblocks a mile or two from the town to be identified and processed. Those under federal warrants would be arrested. A grand jury at Sioux Falls has indicted 31 but has not released names.

— Justice Department attorneys would not recommend high bail levels but leave the decision to the discretion of judicial authorities.

A representative for the National Council of Churches (NCC) has been arranging the meetings between the government and the Indians and has been sitting in on the talks.

Earlier, several members of the AIM security force burned a copy of the government proposal, drawing cheers from some 150 who attended the rally.

The new meeting site Sunday was at the Church of God Chapel —a wooden building shaped like a tepee.

Some 300 marshals and FBI agents have manned roadblocks and arrested any leaving the village suspected of having taken part in the occupation.

Franklin met Saturday with Richard Wilson, the Oglala Sioux tribal president, in nearby Pine Ridge.

The protesting Indians in Wounded Knee have demanded Wilson's ouster and new elections to determine leadership for the 13,000-member Oglala Sioux, most of whom live on the reservation surrounding Wounded Knee.

AIM has charged Wilson and the Bureau of Indian Affairs with corruption and incompetence. AIM has also demanded investigation of alleged violations of U.S.-Indian treaties.

The protesters have held the historic village since Feb. 27. It was at Wounded Knee in 1890 that the last major incident of the American-Indian wars was fought. Some 146 Sioux and 31 U.S. troops were killed.

AIM spokesmen said the government peace offer included provisions that Indian leaders would be allowed to give news conferences not to exceed one hour in length before and after the negotiations.

The Indians would be given accomodations in Sioux Falls and the negotiations would be held "in a suitable place."

The second phase included a promise that no federal agents would enter Wounded Knee until three hours after that phase begins.

Members Of Old Royalty Rounded Up In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) – Government soldiers rounded up half a dozen members of Cambodia's old royal family Sunday and tightened security in the capital following a bombing attack on President Lon Nol's palace in an apparent assassination attempt.

Troops in full battle order rolled up in trucks at the homes of several close relatives of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk, most of whom have been under virtual house arrest since his overthrow three years ago Sunday. They were hustled off to Phnom Penh jails.

Guards around the home of Queen Mother Kossomak were reinforced, but there were no reports she had been arrested.

The ailing 60-year-old president called off state and religious ceremonies marking Sihanouk's 1970 overthrow and remained in seclusion behind barbed wire defenses at his downtown palace.

Capt. So Potra of the air force swooped a stolen T28 fighter plane over Lon Nol's palace Saturday, blasting the palace guard's compound and razing the homes of more than 100 army families.

At least 36 persons were killed and 50 injured, by official count, in the blast and a subsequent fire that swept through the closely packed shacks.

Lon Nol, who since 1971 has been paralyzed on his left side and rarely leaves the palace, was unhurt.

He promptly imposed martial law, closed all newspapers except government information organs, and at least temporarily forbade all residents, Cambodian and foreign, from leaving the country.

Fresh troops were brought into the capital and whole sections were cordoned off, with army units camping in the streets.

Potra apparently escaped, and there was no firm news where he landed the stolen plane. He was last sighted over Kompong Cham Province near the Parrot's Beak region adjoining South Vietnam.

He was believed to have landed at a jungle air strip in the area under the control of Cambodia's Communist Khmer Rouge rebels and their North Vietnamese allies.

Lon Nol went on the radio to allege that the assassination attempt was part of a Communist plot to overthrow his government, but so far there has been no insurgent followup of the bombing.

Government officials claim the coup attempt was nipped in the bud following the failure to kill the head of state. Other reports emanating from American sources say the bombing was a personal vendetta against the president by Potra, who was disgruntled over flunking flight training. Still another story says Sihanouk's daughter, Princess Botum Bopha, was his mistress and his attack was launched for royalist motives.

Government Jeopardizing Freedoms, Unitarian Says

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The national president of the Unitarian Universalist Association (UUA) Sunday accused the government of jeopardizing individual freedoms guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

And because religious freedoms cannot be separated from other individual freedoms, the church has an equal stake in maintaining them, said Robert West.

West, of Boston, was in Lincoln to observe the 75th anniversary of the local Unitarian Church.

The government investigated the UUA "secretly" through a grand jury after Beacon Press — owned by UUA — published the Pentagon Papers in 1971, West said in an interview.

Yet Beacon published them after the New York Times and Alaska Sen. Mike Gravel had made the documents public, he said.

'Resistance'

The UUA's "resistance to the government," West said, came after checks written by the UUA and records of contributors to the church were subpoenaed. The UUA discovered the move only after a bank official voluntarily notified the church, he said.

"The Supreme Court has said this is unconstitutional," West explained. "If we hadn't moved, the question is what denomination is next?"

UUA published the Pentagon Papers, he said, because of "our concern about peace and war. If the American public had known the information (earlier), we would not have become so deeply involved in the Vietnam war."

Secondly, he said, "We've always been concerned with individual freedoms and the function of democracy," which he said has traditionally meant "the people's right to know — in fact, the people's duty to know."

Costly Venture

Despite the financial failure of the non-profit, non-royalty venture (it cost Beacon Press $161,000 to publish the Pentagon Papers and the return after 1½ years has been $85,000), "We felt it was extremely important," West said.

The UUA did not stop with the Pentagon Papers.

West said "Our primary concerns at the moment are freedom of the press, misuse of grand juries — the practical vehicle for these abuses of privacy, religious freedom and academic freedom.

He said he believes pressure from high government officials is placing public television in great immediate danger, as well as book publishers and newspapers.

"The major threat to freedom of the press is government secrecy," West stated. He said grand juries "have been used to repress legitimate dissent on the part of peace groups . . . and now reporters."

Government is "making a horrible mistake," West said, noting that religious freedoms are "as much at stake as a newspaper reporter's."

Pre-Service Session

West addressed about 60 Unitarian members Sunday morning in a pre-service question-and-answer session.

He told them that a district attorney in Wisconsin "threatened to prosecute the people of the Unitarian Church" if they used a human sexuality course, designed for junior high through adult levels.

"The church sought a federal court injunction saying that the district attorney had no right to interfere with the Unitarian Church teaching its children," he said.

And he noted that the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals not only affirmed the injunction, but upheld in its entirety the opinion of the lower court, which denied interference with the church by public officials.

"I think this is going to have a salutory effect on the entire nation," West said.

Cod War Shooting Reported

REYKJAVIK (AP) – An Icelandic gunboat fired twice Sunday across the bows of the British tug Statesman, the Icelandic coast guard reported.

The coast guard said the captain of the gunboat Odinn fired "only after repeated attempts by the Statesman to ram the Icelandic vessel, in blatant and repeated violation of international sailing rules."

A coast guard spokesman said the incident occurred off Cape Horn on Iceland's northwest coast. He called it the most serious confrontation yet in the "cod war," generated last September when Iceland unilaterally extended its fishing waters to 50 nautical miles from shore instead of the previous 12.

The British government sent the Statesman, a fast ocean going tug, to the waters off Iceland in January to help defend British fishing vessels from such tactics as wire-cutting by Icelandic ships.

Three-Part Survey To Gauge Drug Use

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Commission on Drugs has contracted with the University of Nebraska Bureau of Sociological Research to conduct a three-part survey of 13,000 people in the state to gauge the extent of drug use.

The $8,500 survey, which must be completed by May 1 under the terms of the contract, will be used by the commission in June to draw up a state plan to combat drug abuse.

The survey will be the largest drug survey ever conducted in Nebraska, according to Jeff Kushner, executive secretary of the commission.

"There have been no studies of this scope in the state," he said.

Concentrate On Attitudes

Kushner said the survey, which is similar to one recently administered to 30,000 people in Utah, will concentrate on attitudes toward drugs and present drug treatment plans, in addition to determining how widespread drug use is.

The survey will also include an inventory of drug treatment facilities at 300 locations. A five-page survey of law enforcement officials' attitudes on drug use has already been sent to 393 lawmen and attorneys.

The first phase of the study will ask 6,000 junior and senior high students in 50 randomly selected schools around the state about their experience with and attitudes toward drugs.

Kushner said the surveys will be administered in classes on an as-yet-undetermined date. He added that the questionaires will be kept confidential and that participants in the study will not be required to give their names.

College, University Students

The second part of the survey will involve mailing 2,000 questionnaires to college and university students. The names will also be selected at random from enrollment lists provided by the colleges.

Part three of the survey will be directed at 5,000 randomly-selected members of the general public. Kushner said a telephone follow-up will be used in the second and third parts of the survey.

Kushner noted that those survey figures will not include Lincoln residents, since, he said, a $9,500 grand has already been made to the City of Lincoln to study drug use. Both surveys will use the same questions, Kushner said, and the results will be combined when tabulated.

The two drug surveys should "dovetail quite well," Kushner said.

Validity Assured

The survey questions, Kushner said, were developed by Dr. Carl Chambers of Dade County (Fla.) Hospital and are designed to assure validity of answers. Utah officials said they felt the survey was 97% accurate, Kushner said.

The outcome of the survey, he said, could affect current approaches to drug abuse prevention (the effectiveness of parent training, peer group pressure) and treatment.

The resulting state plan to combat drug abuse, if approved by the National Institute of Mental Health, would be funded by a $114,000 federal grant received last Friday and hopefully another $100,000 of state funds.

Together Kushner said the funds would be adequate to support a statewide drug abuse plan.

There is some question, though, about how much state money will be available to the Commission on Drugs. The Appropriations Committee is considering cutting general fund support for the commission from $183,416 to $100,000 in view of an anticipated decline in availability of federal funds.

Longest-Held Captive Heading Back To U.S.

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The American serviceman held longest in captivity in the Vietnam war heads home Monday together with 25 other freed prisoners of war.

They are the last of the 134 military men and six civilians released by the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong in Hanoi on Wednesday and Friday. Leaving with them is Navy Cmdr. Robert J. Flynn, 36, of Colorado Springs, Colo., one of two military pilots shot down over China during the Vietnam war and freed by the Chinese on Thursday.

The first of two C141 StarLifter flying hospitals carrying 12 men is scheduled to leave at 8 a.m. for McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., via Hickam Air Base, Hawaii. The second plane will depart two hours later for Travis Air Force Base, Calif., and Scott Air Force Base, Ill., also with a stopover at Hickam.

The POWs include Army Maj. Floyd J. Thompson, 39, of Hudson, Mass., the longest held captive; Philip W. Manhard, 51, of McLean, Va., the highest ranking U.S. diplomat captured by the Communists; and Marine Sgt. Ronald L. Ridgeway, 23, of Houston, Tex., who was mistakenly declared dead in August 1968 after the decomposed bodies of several men were found in an abandoned outpost where his squad was ambushed.

"I'm anxious to see my family, but especially my son," said Thompson. "He's nine years old and I've never seen him." His son was born a day after he was shot down.

Thompson, a member of the elite Green Berets, was captured on March 26, 1964, in Quang Tri Province just south of the demilitarized zone when his observation plane was downed during a reconnaissance mission.

Manhard was taken prisoner on Jan. 31, 1968, during the Tet offensive in Hue. He was the senior U.S. province adviser.

Thompson, Manhard and Ridgeway were released by the Viet Cong on Friday together with 29 other POWs, including eight servicemen who the North Vietnamese say made antiwar statements in captivity. The eight were flown home Sunday together with 48 other military men, including Air Force Maj. Philip F. Smith, 38, of Roodhouse, Ill., the other pilot released by the Chinese.

Military officials say there was no significance in the quick departure of the eight, who were at Clark roughly a day less than most returning prisoners. Except for the first group, which spent two days at Clark, other POWs have taken a minimum of three days to clear medical and administrative procedures.

The eight were kept under strict security at Clark. Reports from Washington linked some of them to a "peace committee" which reportedly refused to obey orders given by senior officers in prison camps.

Col. John W. Ord, commander of the base hospital, told a news conference the eight servicemen were processed normally and there were no orders to rush them through.

Ord said the prisoners released by the Communists have been in generally good condition mentally and physically. Some men suffered from minor viral illnesses and several of those released by the Viet Cong had malaria, but all were successfully treated, he said.

Clark Air Base, the initial processing station for returning POWs, awaits the next — and probably last — contingent of prisoners. By North Vietnamese count, 147 American POWs remain held by Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

56 More Liberated Americans Greeted By Cheers, Applause

Fifty-six more liberated Americans flew toward home Sunday to welcomes that included cheers, applause and — for one man at least — a bottle of champagne.

"If I were able to express our emotions at this time, I think that I'd just state that we were filled with considerable humility and gratitude," Col. John Flynn of Cleveland, Ohio, said as he stepped off a plane at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex.

Flynn and 18 other men flew to Kelly from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. The rest of the men headed for Travis Air Force Base in California and Scott Air Force Base in Illinois.

Flynn, an Air Force officer captured on Oct. 27, 1967, took note of his Texas surroundings.

"The jails of Hanoi are something like the Alamo," he told a crowd of about 1,400. "There was no place to run and our men, like the men at the Alamo, were responsible for some tremendously heroic deeds which I know will go down in history."

Another returning POW at Kelly got a special bonus. Air Force Capt. Jeffery Ellis of Caldwell, N.J., was handed a bottle of champagne by one of the spectators.

The men returning Sunday included eight who were linked to antiwar activities while in prison in Vietnam.

World News

All got a big sendoff from Clark, where they were flown after their release by the Communists last week.

Among the departing men was Air Force Maj. Philip F. Smith, who had been a prisoner in China for 7½ years. "You are all wonderful. I love you all," he told a crowd of well-wishers before leaving Clark.

The 38-year-old Roodhouse, Ill., pilot hugged and kissed women and teen-aged girls and told them he was touched deeply by the warmth of their reception and the American flags he saw at Clark.

The 26 ex-POWs remaining at Clark were scheduled to arrive in the United States on two flights Monday. They include Maj. Floyd J. Thompson, 39, of Hudson, Mass., the longest held American captive.

They were the last of the 441 Americans freed by the Communists since the Vietnam cease-fire. That includes two pilots released by China. The cease-fire pact calls for the release by March 28 of the remaining 147 POWs the Vietnamese Communists say they hold.

A crowd of about 1,000 was on hand at Travis to greet the men. Among the signs waved by well-wishers was one that read: "We thank God you're home."

The first man off the plane, Capt. Leo T. Profilet of Palo Alto, Calif., said: "We're back in our land and we're back with our people, and we are humbly grateful to God and to you, our countrymen, for bringing us home."

Maj. David E. Ford of Sacramento, Calif., a father of eight who was shot down in 1967 over North Vietnam, blew kisses to the crowd and said: "I can't begin to tell you what this moment means to me. It's been a long time coming. I think you all very much for everything you have done for myself and my family. It makes me proud to be an American."

A Marine who flew with the men from the Philippines said their pilot had passed several times over the Golden Gate and San Francisco as the liberated prisoners took turns, five at a time, staring at the view from the hospital jet's flight deck.

Freed Prisoner Plans To Make 'Imaginary Trips' Real

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — When Philip Manhard was behind bamboo bars he took "some wonderful imaginary trips" around the United States with his wife and four children.

The frail, slightly stooped Foreign Service officer leaves for home Monday, and taking some of those trips he worked out in his mind is his "first order of priority."

At a brief news conference Sunday night, Manhard, 51, the highest ranking Foreign Service officer captured in Vietnam, talked again and again of his family.

He said that during his five years of captivity he never lost confidence "that I would survive and one day come home to my family."

What kept him going?

"Faith in my country and my family," he said softly.

Manhard, a State Department senior province adviser in South Vietnam, was captured Jan. 31, 1968, in Hue during the Tet offensive. Viet Cong guerrillas burst into his house and found him hiding under a stairwell. He was released in Hanoi on Friday.

He said various Viet Cong troops walked him most of the way to North Vietnam right after his capture. He arrived at his first North Vietnamese prison camp more than three months later on April 12.

In addition to taking imaginary trips, he fought the isolation and boredom of imprisonment by taking bread that wasn't needed to eat and using it to make checkers and chess pieces.

He said he had limited contact with other Americans and learned of men landing on the moon "quite awhile afterwards."

He indicated he will stay in the diplomatic corps. Would he go back to Vietnam?

"I have no strong feelings about it," he said. "I will serve my government wherever it wants me."

He said he is in reasonably good health although he couldn't yet "play tennis or go out for 18 holes of golf."

Again returning to his family, he said he was "amazed and flabbergasted. I was absolutely delighted" to see in the military newspaper Stars and Stripes a photograph of his wife Peggy and Pat Nixon. They were together at the White House Tuesday during a reception for Foreign Service wives.

Mrs. Manhard and her four children, three teen-agers, live in McLean, Va. She told Mrs. Nixon that the children continued to buy Christmas presents for their father and there is a whole drawer of wrapped presents waiting for him when he returns.

Million-Dollar Hashish Cache Found By Dutch

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — A million-dollar cache of hashish described by Dutch police as the largest uncovered in Europe was found in a warehouse, packed in cans marked foodstuff, police reported Sunday.

Ninety-55-pound cans said to have a combined wholesale value of $1.1 million were in the warehouse in Rotterdam harbor.

The cans were discovered over the weekend when three Dutchmen were caught trying to break into the warehouse, police said.

According to police, the hashish was brought into the Netherlands by a Pakistani ship last week. Police refused to disclose the ship's name.

13 Persons Die After Tremor Hits Philippines

MANILA (AP) — The toll rose to 13 persons dead and more than 100 injured as reports of damage from an earthquake that shook a wide area of the Philippines continued to trickle in Sunday.

The tremor, with an intensity of 6 on the Richter scale of 9, sway... tall buildings and snapped power lines when it hit Saturday.

The Red Cross reported that seven persons died in the town of Lopez and four in Calauag, Quezon Province, where 78 houses were destroyed. It said 32 persons were injured in Lopez and 26 in Calauag.

Babysitting Co-op Is In 6th Year

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Now in its sixth year, the co-op maintains a full membership of 30 families with several more on a waiting list

Spurred into action by a newspaper article of a similar co-op in another city Mrs Neva Pruess set about organizing one in Lincoln

No haphazard planner Mrs Pruess — then the mother of a newborn and a two-year old — spent hours at the library checking out articles in both newspapers and magazines to see how such groups got organized

Working with a core group of two other women Mrs Pruess saw a need for a tightly organized co op structure from the very start Carefully spelled out rules covering most every situation that would arise in the exchange of baby-sitting services between families were formally set out

Dozen To Start

An initial group of a dozen women got the co op underway and membership was limited to 20 families for several years but the present ceiling is 30—a very workable number according to Mrs Pruess

The chairman serves for a full year and each member takes a turn being secretary for a two week period The secretary acts as a clearinghouse matching requests for sitters with schedules of those who are available to do the job

A point system is used with the secretary serving as bookkeeper

Mrs Pruess explained that a base of four points is used for one child per hour of sitting For every additional child under six years of age an extra point is added per hour until 9 p m when all children are expected to be in bed Extra points are also added during the dinner hour and after midnight

All points earned during each exchange are reported to the secretary by the sitter with an equal number of points to be subtracted from the record of the person receiving the services

No More Than 60

To keep the system from getting out of hand Mrs Pruess explained that no one is allowed to get more than 60 points in the hole Anyone with that large a point debt is not eligible for a sitter until she works off a number of points

For the most part added Mrs Pruess co-op members are fair about the exchange of services and are not negligent in their share of sitting obligations No member can drop out of the co-op without first having worked off any points she still owes

During daytime hours parents take their children to the sitter's home, evening sitting is done in the child's own home Often exchanges are made with other co-op members nearby rather than going through the secretary although points are still reported said Mrs Pruess

Cooperative husbands are an essential part of a successful co op noted Mrs Pruess In addition to pinch hitting for a wife when a last-minute change of plans or illness conflict with a pre arranged sitting assignment husbands must be willing to take care of their own kids while the wife is at someone else s home sitting

Use Essential

Another important element in the working of the co op is an active membership The more people who use the system the more success there is in maintaining a healthy balance of services exchanged remarked Mrs Pruess

She explained that she relies on the co-op for all her sitting needs and hasn t hired a sitter in over five years Because no money has been exchanged the savings have been substantial feels Mrs Pruess

Expressing what she believes to be the real advantages of the co op Mrs Pruess cited the convenience the savings and the security of having another mother take care of her child

Rising Food Costs Causing Woes With Circuses, Zoos

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

People aren t the only ones with problems over the high cost of food The animals are having trouble too

Zoos circuses and other facilities that have to feed large numbers of animals report costs have risen sharply over recent months

The chief veterinarian at the Crandon Park Zoo in Key Biscayne Fla for example said the cost of feeding the facility s 1 100 birds reptiles and mammals has risen about 15 per cent in the past year

Horse meat alone he said has gone from about 29 cents to 37 cents a pound And the zoo buys 40 000 pounds of horsemeat a year

The New York City Parks Department said the food bill for the Central Park Flushing and Prospect Park zoos was $132 566 for the fiscal year ended last June 30 The bill for the first nine months of this year is $160 - 100 A big chunk goes for fruit and vegetables and for horse meat — bolstered with bone meal and vitamins a spokesman said

Wayne Larey purchasing agent for one of two units of the Ringling Bros Barnum & Bailey Circus said he buys 750 pounds of beef a day for the circus 20 lions and 19 tigers They re eating better than I am he said noting that the cats must be fed lean beef which costs 75 to 80 cents a pound up 30 per cent from last year

Larey also buys large quantities of hay and other grains breads fruits and vegetables The hay must be timothy he said and the price is exhorbitant this year — $90 to $105 a ton with the circus using 1½ tons a day

Just like people the animals are learning to make do with less expensive foods

The Crandon Park spokesman said some of the big cats are being fed a prepared diet of chicken horse meat minerals and vitamins that actually is more nutritious than plain meat as well as being cheaper The zoo also bought a large freezer so food could be bought in bulk

New York City hasn t cut back its animals diet as yet but a spokesman said the parks department is having to do a little budget juggling taking from other accounts

Larey says the circus animals also continue to eat only the best

They have to eat he said The lions are fed chicken once a week he said cutting costs somewhat but the tigers refuse They only sniff at the chicken he added

Aide Refusing To Talk Should Be 'Arrested'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen Sam J Ervin D N C said Sunday he would recommend that the Senate send its sergeant at arms to arrest any White House aide who refuses to testify before the Judiciary Committee

Ervin said he believes President Nixon has stretched the doctrine of executive privilege far beyond its true bounds in refusing to allow his aides to appear

The committee is currently holding hearings on the President s nomination of L Patrick Gray III to become permanent director of the FBI

Gray has testified that he sent reports on the FBI s investigation of the Watergate bugging case to John W Dean III the President s counsel

Nixon refused last week to allow Dean to testify and challenged Congress to test his position on the question with the U S Supreme Court

Ervin a member of the committee, said on CBS s Face the Nation program that if the question became a protracted court battle I d recommend to the Senate to send a sergeant at arms to arrest a White House aide or any other witness that refuses to appear

Asked about the President s contention that Dean had a lawyer s privilege as well as executive privilege Ervin said I don t think Mr Dean was counsel for any of the people on the White House staff

I think he was there to monitor their testimony he continued not to protect them

Lack Medical Aid

Mexico City (AP) — Dr Guillermo Soberon, rector of the National Autonomous University told a health conference that about 47 per cent of Mexico's 2 - 387 municipalities have no medical services

Saigon To Appeal To Truce Observers

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese military officials said Sunday complaints of attacks on two of their positions north of Saigon will be appealed to international truce observers because Communist peacekeeping delegates refused to investigate

They said further they have no plans for South Vietnamese forces to relieve the two outposts which they claim have been surrounded and under periodic attack for a week

We should have the capability to launch military operations to relieve these positions but we don t want to do it said Lt Col Le Trung Hien the senior military spokesman

We realize the case could be worsened so we are now trying to make protests in the Joint Military Commission and another protest to the International Commission of Control and Supervision

The outposts are Tong Le Chan a ranger base 65 miles northwest of Saigon and Rach Bap a regional militia outpost on the Saigon River about 25 miles to the north

According to Saigon officials Communist troops surrounded the two bases seven days ago and have repeatedly shelled and attacked them Wounded soldiers have not been evacuated because heavy enemy ground fire has driven off all medical evacuation helicopters they said

South Vietnam raised the issue Saturday in a special session of the Joint Military Commission alleging serious violations of the cease fire by the Communist side and demanding an investigation by the commission Its members are North and South Vietnam the United States and the Viet Cong

However Viet Cong and North Vietnamese commission delegates refused an inquiry countering with charges that the rangers have been carrying out heavy and intense operations while other government troops conducted field operations and built more than 100 new bases

It appeared doubtful that a South Vietnamese appeal to the International Commission of Control and Supervision made up of Canada Hungary Indonesia and Poland would have any more effect than its demand to the Joint Military Commission

Polish and Hungarian delegations to the international body have refused demands by Saigon for several such inquiries and peacekeeping teams have refused to go into areas that are contested or considered too dangerous

The third phase of the prisoner exchange between South Vietnam and the Communist side neared its conclusion Spokesmen said a tentative target date of March 25 has been agreed upon for ending the fourth and last phase At that time South Vietnam is to have handed over more than 26 700 prisoners and received more than 4 700 in return

If exchanges scheduled for Monday at Quang Tri in the north and Thien Ngon near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon go as planned 19 782 Communist POWs will have been returned to Communist control and 3 265 turned over to Saigon forces

Three former Communist soldiers asked and got permission Sunday to stay on the Saigon side rather than be turned over bringing the reported total of defectors to eight spokesmen said

At the same time five South Vietnamese soldiers held by the Communist side declined to come back under Saigon s control at Quang Tri

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Are there any who are not familiar with the famous biblical account of the two women both of whom laid claim to the same child? Wise King Solomon won himself a place forever in the Old Testament with his judicial settlement of the case.

Cut the infant in half, he compromised, and give one part to one woman and one part to the other. At that, the real mother of the child protested and agreed that the other woman could have the child intact. Solomon then knew, of course, who the real mother was and where the child really belonged.

From that time on, anyone making an especially bright decision was credited with having the wisdom of Solomon. The credit for suxh wisdom must be awarded a committee of the Colorado legislature in its efforts to establish a state bird.

State birds, state flowers, state songs — all of them and more are a part of the trivia that adds a little zest to life and promotes a sense of togetherness. But woe to the individual who thinks that such matters cannot become near critical in the affairs of society.

Things in Colorado were nip and tuck as between the lark bunting and mountain bluebird as prospective state birds. The lark bunting has a "furtive, secretive air," claimed an advocate of the bluebird, while the mountain bird has "an open, honest, trusting look."

Then, a brilliant compromise came from within the state bird committee. It was decided to retain the lark bunting as the state bird below 5,000 feet elevations, the mountain bluebird between 5,000 and 8,000 feet and the ptarmigan above 8,000 feet.

Colorado, of course, is a state of rapidly changing altitudes so a kind of vertical approach to things is a very logical idea. But a state such as Nebraska would have a little difficulty dividing itself on such a basis. Rather, Nebraska might be inclined to look at things from a horizontal point of view.

Rather than settling as we have on one bird, the western meadowlark, Nebraska might divide itself up and parcel out the state to the meadowlark, the cardinal, the mourning dove, the chickadee, etc. The goldonrod is our flower but we could have our pick of a virtual endless number of state flowers for various regions of the state.

One hates to stir up a fight but what about a state tree? After rather long and embattled debate, we have given the heave-ho to the elm, a victim of beetles, and adopted the cottonwood.

But there are many deserving trees in the state and we could honor far more of them if we followed Colorado's example and assigned a tree to different areas. The possibilities are almost endless when you consider that we also have a state song, state grass, state name and state flag.

This could easily produce as great a hassle as Nebraska has ever experienced since statehood. It would effectively pit all regions of the state against one another and divide old loyalties as never before.

Just imagine Central Nebraska walking off with the grass designation that easterners wanted. Since it is so universal, who would get the goldenrod? And finally, there would be the battle of all battles — what region would end up with Cornhusker state as its own popular name?

That, of course, is one of the evils of compromise — you run the risk of making everybody mad. The bird decision in Colorado simply left everyone one-third satisfied and two-thirds unhappy, except for the fence riders who might like all three birds.

PHYLLIS BATTELLE

A Tired Body Says: 'Have A Heart'

NEW YORK — Fatigue can be caused by a great many factors — such as overexertion, sleeplessness, the high cost of meat, pressure on the job, or even your simple manic depression.

But there is one type of fatigue that is intensely dangerous . . .

A cardiac specialist in Cincinnati studied his heart patients over a period of 18 years, and came to the conclusion that one theme underlies all heart attack cases: the body has an early warning system which, if heeded, could avert most cardiac attacks.

Dr. William S. Green called it "pre-heart attack fatigue," and urged everyone to watch for it.

Dr. Green claimed that at least six months before a real attack occurs, the first appearance of pre-attack fatigue occurs: the victim feels "dragged out, and the dragged-out feeling drags on. Getting progressively worse.

"Like the drop of water wearing away the stone, his weariness adds up until one Saturday afternoon he experiences an unexpected feeling of physical letdown and has difficulty dragging himself to the shower to prepare for the activities that night."

After a Sunday rest, it is typical for such a person to "feel his old self."

But during the following week especially after staying up late or working overtime, he notices his ability to bounce back is slower than ever.

The time gradually comes when even a full day's rest on Sunday doesn't help. He's still tired on Monday.

At this stage, Dr. Green says, the man may visit a physician.

All tests, however, are likely to be "negative."

Relieved — but still tired — he may try some home remedies: give up smoking, take vitamins, exercise each morning. But the hour is late.

Then one day — he may be bowling, or undergoing an extreme of temperature — a last-straw demand on his heart will ask it to give more than it has left to give.

"If he is lucky," said the doctor, "the heart may give only a stern protest. Severe angina pain, or a mild attack.

If he is unlucky, he'll be dead in minutes.

Dr. Green claimed never to have found a case where the patient did not have an adequate "wash-out" warning well in advance of the attack.

For such a warning, the only treatment is rest. Preferably in a hospital, or in a quiet bedroom at home.

The physician agreed that there are many, many kinds of growing fatigue. In fact, doctors have frequently cited psychological reasons as the "chief cause" for fatigue. Depression, frustration, worry, pressure — all these can make one progressively weary.

"But all unaccustomed and increasing fatigue without a valid reason," warned Dr. Green, "should be looked upon with suspicion. Medical help, rest, and a cessation of drive should be inaugurated promptly."

Firm Stand On Crime

Spending For Defense

According to a recent Gallup Poll, the public is almost evenly divided about the amount the nation spends for its military security, with a slight edge going to those who think we spend too much.

The figures may accurately reflect public opinion. But that opinion is based on little hard knowledge. The defense requirements of this country are really a mystrery to the general public.

The questions might just as well have been couched in political or philosophical terms such as, "are you pessimistic or optimistic about the chances for a lasting world peace?" or "should the U.S. brace itself against the communist menace or do you regard the menace as a myth?" or "should the U.S. continue to assume the role of international policeman or should it turn inward and try to solve its problems at home?" The public might be just about as evenly divided in its answers to questions such as those.

In the nuclear and computer age, military strength is not necessarily gauged in terms of numbers of divisions or tanks or manned aircraft. People by and large do not comprehend the requirements of a super-sophisticated military apparatus, so they do not know how to judge the demands of the military chiefs. So they resort to raw opinions on such concepts as the need to be strong, which, of course, defies accurate definition.

Our elected leaders do not help us much. Some of them are tied to the defense contractors or are seeking military plums for their home districts and some of them display the frightening inclination to just turn the other cheek to aggressive acts. Some elected officials study the military and assume they have expertise in the field. But for every William Proxmire who wants to take the knife to the defense budget, there is an equally knowledgeable Henry Jackson who says the U.S. is falling behind and should spend more.

As military systems become more sophisticated and the public understands less, there is more reason than ever to remember what Gen. Eisenhower said in reference to the military-industrial complex. We suppose the time will come when the public — whether they fully understand what is going on or not — will say that enough is enough. But for the present, the American citizen-taxpayer will not know — short of all-out war — whether he has shelled out for good reason or whether he has been taken for an expensive ride — that wasn't necessary.

Problems No Worse

A speaker at last week's annual Nebraska State Education Association gathering told his listeners that modern problems seem worse than those of past years only because we haven't solved them yet. Turning it around, problems of the past seem less difficult only because they have been solved.

While that may seem a rather simplistic observation, it is of some value in judging the relative merits of where we are today, where we have been and where we will be going in the future. In our pessimistic times we may begin to think that the world is in an awful mess, that each generation leaves things more complicated than they have been.

Some of us even get to the point where we think there is nothing good left in the world. The folly of this is found in the fact that it is the things that challenge us that take our attention while matters that have been taken care of tend to become taken for granted.

Individuals and society simply do not make an issue out of those affairs that might be considered to be in good shape. And why should it not be so? There is, after all, no point in dwelling upon things or issues that have reached their peak.

Far better that we expend our energies on those ideas and suggestions that represent a new area of fulfillment and achievement. Thus it is that we seek out the shortcomings in our society, that we look to our failures, so that we might even better refine the total fabric of mankind.

You might remember the biblical admonition to search for the sheep that was lost even at the risk of those that were safe in the flock. Every generation must make its own contribution to the world and that means we must recognize untapped potential and work for its full utilization.

We will always have problems with us simply because we can never be really satisfied with things as they are. Therefore, our problems are not a sign of our difference with the past, but rather, a part of the human chain of events that constitute civilization.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Looking Up Down Under

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA — During its brief history Australia swung from total dependence on Britain to heavy reliance on America. Now it is starting an experiment with independent nationalism. But it is less likely than imagined by some enthusiasts that a pseudo-isolationist move can long endure for, from its birth, this country has been sharply influenced by far-off events.

British defeat in the American Revolution inspired the first settlements here. England has previously used its trans-Atlantic colonies as a dumping ground for criminals. After Yorktown, when this safety valve closed, Britain's jails became overcrowded and it was necessary to find a new penal settlement. Australia was chosen.

Prostitutes were sent along with convicts to insure a permanent population. The early commonwealth of thieves and bastards got an economic assist when the Napoleonic wars cut off Britain's wool trade with Spain and Australian fleece became a substitute.

Because of their sordid initial origins, Australians were long dominated by worries about inferiority. Although this is the oldest continent, no one but stone age aborigines lived here up until 1788. The hard-boiled new settlers almost exterminated them just as Americans wiped out Indians.

Yet the so-called "abos" plus a collection of unique fauna gave Australia its original personality: dingo dogs, Kangaroos, wallabies, koalas, wombats and bandicoots.

For decades this evolving nation considered itself fiercely loyal to London and "British to the boot tops." In World War II it lost more dead than the United States despite its tiny population.

But when British power was smashed by Japan at Singapore, Australia suddenly turned toward the U.S. for protection. In 1942 its prime minister declared: "With out inhibitions of any kind, I make it quite clear that Australia looks to America, free of any pangs as to our traditional links or kinship with the United Kingdom."

An imitation of the American way of life crept in. Airlines and television got better; trains got worse. Motels, barbeques and U.S. advertising methods flourished. A clever Australia architect observed: "Australia is sinking into the Pacific and a new state is rising which we might call Austerica.

As these individually self-reliant but collectively dependent people tilted away from Britain and toward America, they reversed their foreign policy to mirror Washington's. Although maintaining defense commitments in Malaysia and Singapore to suit British economic convenience, their basic alliance was the ANZUS Pact with New Zealand and the U.S. The U.S. received special military facilities ere to help its Asian defense role and Australia sent troops to Vietnam.

☆ ☆ ☆

But now again change is in the air. A new government beats a new drum of nationalism. Remaining vestiges of English colonialism are headed for the scrap heap. Most Australians see little reason why the Queen's privy council in London should be their ultimate legal court of appeal, or why the Queen should still be considered chief of state. There is an evident of gradual drift in mood toward creating an Australian Republic.

By joining the European Common Market, Britain itself ended final illusions of imperial connection.

Whitlam has recognized Peking and hopes to be accepted by Asian lands as a member of their political club. But there is a limit to such ideas because Australia remains culturally and ethnologically white and, despite its geographical location, Western.

Yet Australia cannot in the end sever fundamental strategic ties with Washington. Until it produces a population commensurate with its continental size, Australia can talk with more abandon than it acts. The obvious fact thaqt it cannot isolate itself from a complex distant world, limits ultimate freedom of choice.

ON TARGET

Alone again . . . naturally.

Lancaster County senators gave 6-0 support to the equal rights amendment last week when the Legislature decided to try to reverse itself and withdraw ratification.

While the rest of the Legislature was voting 30-12 to withdraw ratification, Lincoln area senators stood firmly with ERA.

That, in its way, is just another example of how Lincoln is different from the rest of Nebraska, different from the conservative rural ranch and farm country, different from the conservative majority in Omaha, which, by the way, is largely composed of transplants from the rural ranch and farm country.

Lincoln remains an island of moderation in a staunchly conservative state. It is far more progressive than Nebraska, sometimes even liberal.

That shows up every day in the Legislature — and the vote on ERA is not really the best example of it, although it offers a point of embarkation for this column.

It also shows up in almost every election. You will find Lincoln voting for liberal or progressive or moderate alternatives when the challenger is a doctrinaire conservative.

You can find exception, of course.

But it was Lincoln which bounced Ralph Beermann from Congress when it found him to be too conservative. Lincoln elected Clair Callan in 1964. It rejected Barry Goldwater not only in that general election, but in the Republican primary race which preceded it.

Don Walton
Lincoln
Alone Again

Lincoln chose George McGovern over Hubert Humphrey in the 1972 Democratic presidential primary election.

And, in 1970, it voted strongly for Norbert Tiemann, the moderate, over Jim Exon, campaigning as a fiscal conservative, in a gubernatorial election whose results were reversed throughout the rest of Nebraska. Tiemann won Lincoln big. Exon won Nebraska big.

(Exon, by the way, is likely to do much better in Lincoln next year — especially if the challenge he receives from Republicans is cloaked in conservative wraps.)

What makes Lincoln different?

The university, of course. A proliferation of government employes, of course. Even its newspapers, which take a more moderate view of things political than most other Nebraska news outlets, I think.

☆ ☆ ☆

The ERA vote also presents an opportunity to study the varying viewpoints of age. What a difference a decade makes.

There are two state senators under 30 — both supported ERA. There are two over 70 — both opposed it.

Eight senators are in their 30s, and six supported the amendment. Ten are in their 40s, and six of them supported it.

Fourteen senators are in their 50s, and 11 of them opposed ERA. Twelve are in their 60s, and 11 of them opposed it.

Among the 10 senators under 40, only Duke Snyder and Gerald Stromer voted to withdraw ratification of the amendment. Among the 14 senators over 60, only Harold Moylan stuck with ERA.

(I you make age 50 the breaking point, the vote for ERA below that mark was 14 to 6. The vote against ERA above that mark was 24-4.

That division of opinion by age points up a number of realities: young people and young ideas do not dominate in the Legislature, and changing patterns and new roles are not very welcome.

You can make too much of the age identification on the ERA vote. The amendment is not supported only by young women, nor is it opposed only by women more accustomed to the role of dutiful wife and homemaker.

Rather, the point is that the vote on key issues in the Legislature — and especially those which deal with social issues — often divides on a basis of age.

Younger members of the Legislature are more ready to vote for change than older senators.

And, in that respect, as in most others, the Nebraska Legislature is a representative body.

Watch it happen again and again as the 1973 session continues — on reinstatement of capital punishment, on a more generous program of aid to dependent children, on correctional reform. Watch it happen.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name, but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Gasohol Action

York, Neb.

Recently the Agriculture Industrial Utilization Committee (Gasohol Committee) and its administrator, Ray Ratliff, have been under attack from Senator Schmit because of what he terms their "inactivity." In rebuttal I submit the following:

On August 1, 1972, I accepted the position of administrator to this committee. Previously I had been a committee member and had on June 1 been elected chairman of the committee, a position which I resigned to assume the paid position of administrator.

I think it is fair to point out that only after I became administrator were there any study grants of any nature instituted. The first study grant made was to the Department of Chemical Engineering for a comparative study of exhaust emissions, the second grant to the Department of Agricultural Economics and the third grant to the Department of Industrial Engineering and Management, all at the University of Nebraska.

If the question be asked, why to the University of Nebraska? It is because we feel we can get more for our money from the university than from private testing laboratories or institutions.

My additional activities have consisted of public relations activities within the state and visiting with legislatures in different states, explaining the program to them with the thought that, if this fuel becomes an economic reality, surrounding states will have it as well as Nebraska. I have also been diligent in answering inquiries from many other states concerning our program.

I have been active in trying to secure an alcohol plant for the State of Nebraska and have made several trips to Atchison, Kansas to confer with the management of their alcohol plant on the possibility of expanding into Nebraska.

I have also worked with various farm service cooperatives to arouse their interest in this program in the hope that they too, because of their farm orientations, would find this program to be a "natural."

One final comment about continued funding of this program. The grant to the University of Nebraska Department of Industrial Engineering and Management concerned itself with preparing and designing what we referred to as a two-million mile road demonstration. The purpose of this was to remove from the area of opinion and guesswork and to put into hard, cold facts whether an alcohol blended fuel had the mechanical feasibility necessary to continue this program. We have been told several times by alcohol manufacturers that they would not put one cent into a power alcohol plant without knowing the results of the mechanical feasibility program. We were, at my termination as administrator, preparing to move into the operation stage of this road demonstration. To properly complete this phase of our research will require spending authority from the legislature.

I feel that there is a personal reason in Senator Schmit's attack on this committee and myself. His opponent in the last election happened to be a personal friend of mine.

Admittedly, at the price of grain today and with petroleum products at their present prices, the economics are not favorable for the use of an alcohol blended fuel. However, few people expect the price of grain to remain where it is and most people are led to believe that the price of gasoline will rise astronomically in the next few years. We should go ahead and work out the technical matters involved in using this fuel. We should encourage the building of an alcohol plant or plants so that when the economics are favorable all will be in readiness.

RAY RATLIFF

Postal Service

Lincoln, Neb.

A letter was sent by the Lincoln Post Office to all businesses in the downtown area asking if they had a need for the afternoon delivery of mail.

The only topic covered by the letter was the saving of money. They say they will save about $130 a day in salaries. They make no mention of how this will also cut a little more service to the public.

They say, or rather conveniently do not say, that business houses getting their mail in the morning could end up on the end of the route which would make their delivery come some time in the afternoon. This would be one a fact because the two trip route now are eight hours long but when they take away the second trip this will mean that each route will have to be added on to by two hours or more to take the place of the afternoon trip. This will require the movement of territory from other routes to make the route an eight hour assignment. This means that some jobs will be done away with.

Here again the thought of service to the public is only a word to the U.S.P.S. If the afternoon delivery is stopped it will never be resumed.

Branch Eight, National Association of Letter Carriers is against this. We feel that because we only have a service to offer, that is what we should be doing and not try to see how it can be done away with.

The patrons who will be affected by this are the only ones who can either stop it from happening or allow it.

Unite For God

Central City, Neb.

Mrs. Madalyn O'Hair is trying to take God out of the Pledge of Allegiance, off the coins we have, and wants to stop prayers and services in the White House and Capitol and other meetings that are held.

Come on Christians. Let us keep God in our nation, for without Him we shall fall. One person does not tell us what to do. This is a democratic government. Let us unite for God. Write the President, members of Congresss, and the Supreme Court and let them know how we feel. Our nation was founded by people wanting to worship God freely. Let us keep it that way.

Violence Mars Irish Weekend

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bombs and gunfights spread across Northern Ireland at the weekend in a violent prelude to D-Day — D for disclosure of Britain's blueprint for peace in the warring province

Ten bombs erupted in the 24 hours up to dawn Sunday, wrecking stores, bars and a supermarket and in one case killing a British soldier whose jeep was blasted to pieces

The violence spilled into the Irish republic killing one man and injuring 50 in a bar wrecked by a car bomb at Lifford a border town in County Donegal

British troops in Belfast and other centers came under guerrilla fire at least 25 times A soldier was wounded by sniper fire in Belfast's Divis Street a stronghold of the Roman Catholic based Provisional branch of the Irish Republican Army

In London, Scotland Yard ordered extra guards on the houses of Parliament and other public buildings for fear of a bombing outburst against the coming government white paper

This document has been in preparation since Britain suspended Northern Ireland's Protestant-controlled Parliament one year ago and took over direct rule

The precise publication date is secret but it is likely to come before March 30. By that date the British government must go before Parliament in London to seek renewal of direct rule powers for another year

William Whitelaw, who as Britain's secretary for Northern Ireland has for the past year wielded all executive power in the province, has stated two main guidelines likely to be in the paper

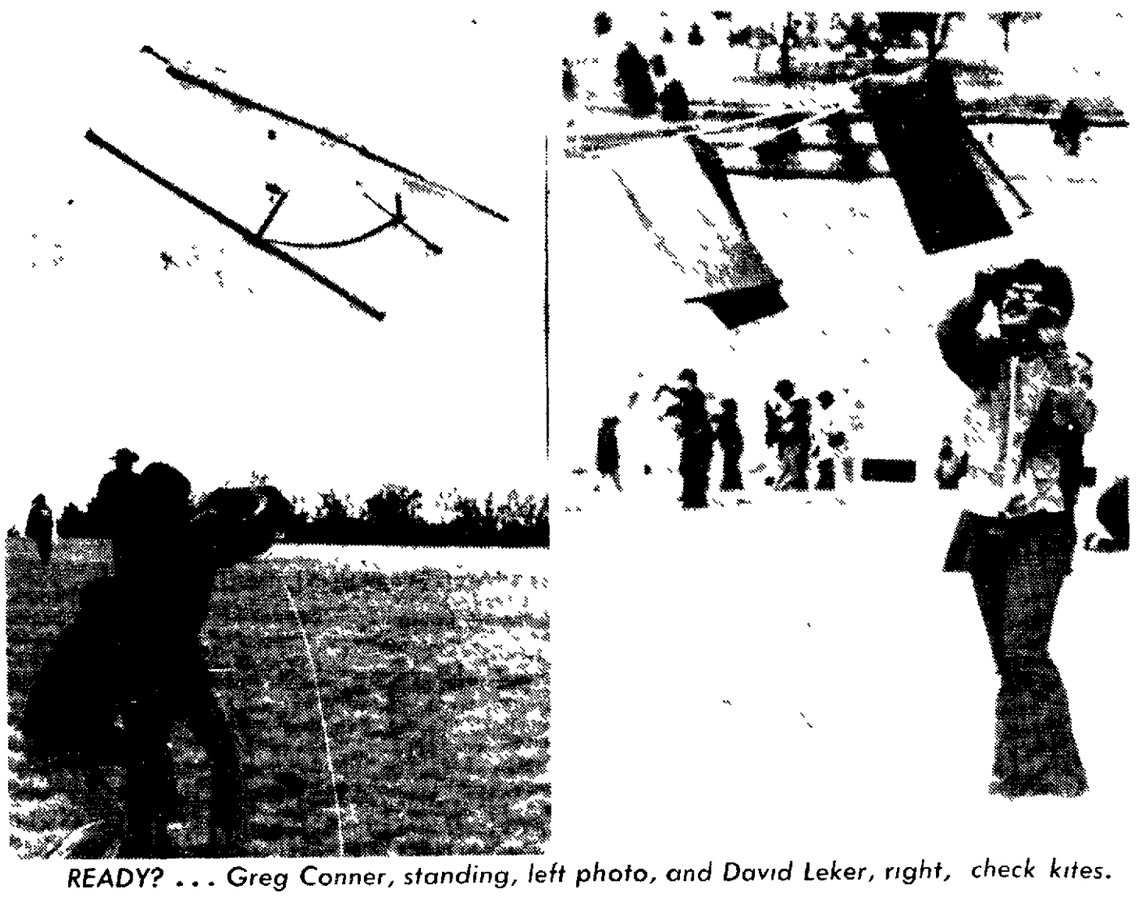

—Protestants who make up two-thirds of the province's 1½ million residents must be assured they will never be forced against their will into a Catholic-dominated Irish republic

—The Catholic minority in the province must be assured of a fair deal in jobs and housing and a share in executive power

Whitelaw's difficulty however, is that northern Protestants will react violently against anything that looks like a sellout to the IRA and that whatever concessions are offered to the Catholic minority, the IRA will keep up its fight for a united Ireland divorced from the British crown

The British had hoped that direct rule would reduce violence by weakening the IRA's support in the grassroots of the Catholic minority

But 460 persons have died since direct rule compared with 203 in the 2½ years of trouble leading to the takeover

13 Killings Admitted By Florida Convict

Lake City Fla (UPI) — An escaped convict who led sheriff's deputies to the body of a Georgia woman two weeks ago confessed to 12 other murders from Florida to Texas police revealed Sunday

Since the arrest of Julian Eugene Kennedy 30 police from Florida to New Mexico have been checking details in their unsolved murders committed during the past 15 years

Kennedy said he first killed when he was 15, as an initiation into a motorcycle gang, police said

So far he has been charged only with the murder of Elva Lee Jones of Valdosta Ga last September But Columbia County Sheriff's Detective Charles Hollis said Kennedy divulged unpublished details of other slayings His office has been flooded with calls throughout Florida and from Texas Arkansas and New Mexico

According to Hollis Kennedy, as an initiation into a Tampa motorcycle gang went with several others to a Tampa motel where they beat a man to death with chair legs and an axe handle

Man Strangled

Shortly after Kennedy helped strangle a man stuffed his body in a plastic bag in a car and parked the car in front of the Tampa Police Station Hollis said

Tampa authorities said both incidents were in their unsolved files

Kennedy blamed his troubles on concussions received playing football at the Forest Lake Academy near Orlando police said

Kennedy decided to tell of the murders because this way I'll stand a better chance of getting out some day the detective quoted him as saying

Heroin Habit

Hollis said the bearded thin six-footer claimed he killed two people in Texas one in Arkansas and one in New Mexico during a string of robberies he committed to support a heroin habit in 1965

Kennedy escaped Sept. 9 from the Lake Butler Prison Reception Center in North Florida, where he was serving a 35-year term for armed robbery, Hollis said.

Kennedy was quoted by lawmen as saying after his escape he stole a car near Lake City drove to Valdosta where he picked up Mrs Jones, returned with her to Columbia County, where he killed her and buried her body in a wooded area west of town

Other slayings Kennedy claimed were strangling a woman in October of 1972 in an argument over drugs killing a hitchhiker in September of 1972 shooting a man in September of 1972 over a bet on a pool game and killing a serviceman 1960 in an argument over a girl Hollis said

Mills Wants Tighter Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep Wilbur D Mills chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Sunday President Nixon's Phase 3 economic controls aren't effective enough and should be replaced with more stringent controls

I think we'll have to have another program Phase 4 that will be more effective in holding down inflation and price increases the Arkansas Democrat said on the NBC broadcast Meet the Press

Mills whose powerful committee oversees tax Social Security welfare and international trade legislation said some of the nation's economic problems can't be solved solely with domestic controls but require participation with other nations

He cited the continuing US trade deficit particularly in sales to Japan and Canada as having a detrimental effect on the value of the dollar and the domestic economy

Asked what tax reforms he expects will come out of his committee this year Mills said that for 10 years he has considered reform of the estate and gift-tax laws as a top priority but has never found an equitable solution to the problem

We are pretty close to coming up with the answers now he said We weren't last year and we weren't in 63

The committee chairman refused to discuss details of various tax reform proposals under consideration in his committee saying it's not proper to write tax laws on television, 'you write them in committee'

But asked to comment on presidential aide John D Ehrlichman's remark a week ago that closing income tax loopholes wouldn't produce much new revenue unless individual taxpayers deductions were reduced Mills agreed

'Tax reform is not the vehicle where you expect a large increase in revenue' he said I view it as a vehicle to write into the tax law greater equity for the future than we had in the past

The effect of reforms he added is to make some taxpayers pay less while others pay more to make up for it

If the Congress wants to raise more tax revenues Mills said it will have to pass an over-all tax increase a move Mills said he would oppose in favor of cutting federal spending

Britain Replaced

Canberra — The United States replaced Britain as Australia's second-largest trading partner in fiscal 1972 trailing only Japan

Dollar Declines In First Trading

LONDON (AP) — The US dollar — battered, devalued and now floating — faced the rigors of the market Monday when foreign exchanges opened for the first time in 17 days It lost ground in its first test in Tokyo

For the first time in 29 years the dollar is on its own with no government committed to defend any set value for it The test of emergency measures to halt monetary turmoil which were ratified Friday in Paris by 14 nations could be crucial for world money and trade relations

On the Tokyo market where trading began about nine hours ahead of European centers because of the time differential the dollar opened at 263 yen — down from a close of 269 60 at the close of the last trading day March 1

Officials said trading was active and there was no intervention by the Bank of Japan

Some observers believe the new measures will bring only temporary respite The question was whether they can hold long enough for governments to write new money and trade rules

US Treasury Secretary George P Shultz arrived in London late Saturday from sweeping reform talks with Common Market and Belgian officials He was to see Prime Minister Edward Heath shortly after the opening of markets Monday

Most dealers expect trading to be slow and hesitant at the start as money operators study the new system of floating currencies moving in response to the forces of supply and demand

Few believe there will be any speculative onslaught on the dollar like the one that poured more than $3½ billion over European exchanges on March 1 forcing a closure the next day

In reality the dollar has been floating since then but only in relatively limited bank-to-bank dealings Now comes the test of whether giant corporations and other big money operators are convinced that the governments mean business and that dollar holdings will keep their value

If they are not convinced they will seek to switch their dollars into German marks or Japanese yen Other currencies considered weak such as sterling or the Italian lira would be forced down along with the dollar

Shultz signed the Paris agreement for the United States on Friday But European observers were quick to point out that he committed his government to little more than intervention to steady the market when Washington thinks it is needed and to study ways of attracting home an estimated $80 billion 'vagabond dollars' in the Eurodollar market

Shultz spent Sunday quietly visiting friends He has a heavy schedule Monday beginning with his call on Heath Then he confers with Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber who will also be his host at a working lunch

In the afternoon Shultz sees British business leaders and Peter Walker, secretary for trade and industry The Americans London visit ends with a dinner given by Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas Home

As in Brussels Shultz will be talking about reform of trading rules that will give American exporters a better break in world trade This in turn would cut down the huge US trade and payments deficit that undermined confidence in the strength of the dollar

The meeting of finance ministers in Paris on Friday ratified an agreement reached just a week ago by ministers of the nine Common Market countries They decided that the community's three weak currencies the British and Irish pounds and the Italian lira will continue to float freely in relation to all currencies

The West German mark probably the community's strongest money was revalued by 3 per cent Then the currencies of Belgium Denmark France West Germany Holland and Luxembourg were tied together able to vary in relation to each other by only 2¼ per cent Finally the whole package of Common Market currencies was set free to float together against the dollar

Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt of West Germany hailed the Brussels agreement as sounding the death knell of the Bretton Woods system that was set up in 1944 and established the system of fixed monetary values

The Bretton Woods system really began breaking down in 1967 when successive speculative runs on the British pound forced its devaluation in November of that year Four months later as confidence in paper money waned speculators rushed to buy gold

From then on the dollar was out in the front line And with each crisis the avalanche of dollars offered for sale built up Confidence in the strength of the dollar dwindled because of the US balance of payments deficit from declining trade huge military expenditure overseas investement by US corporations and spending by American tourists

State banks were forced by the rules of the Bretton Woods system to buy up billions of dollars they didn't want to support the exchange rate They had to take in an estimated $45 billion in little over two years until in Brussels a week ago they said 'enough'

Today My Lai 'Is Too Quiet'

MY LAI 4, Vietnam (AP) — This no-man's town is easy to turn away from.

It is too quiet. Brick rubble piles peer into the sunshine from a scraggle of pine and palm. Leaves sway in the sea breeze. Nothing else moves.

"Go back," shout two government soldiers 50 yards up the road. Come back, the motorbike driver beckons, threatening to leave alone. He points across a meadow cleared by Rome plow, to where he used to live with his family of six, now deceased. Killed by American soldiers, March 16, 1968.

"VC," he says impatiently. "VC."

My Lai 4 is still not safe for the living. The dark patches under the leaves are best shunned, like dark places in the soul.

Five years ago there were screams and gunfire here. But no Viet Cong; they had gone. Charlie Company, Capt. Ernest Medina in charge, killed 450 to 500 Vietnamese men, women and children. That irrigation ditch is where America got the Calley case.

Now My Lai 4 is silent, overgrown, easily missed but for a low-walled grave mound that sits by the ragged road like a sign.

A South Vietnamese outpost looks down from the brow of a grassy hill half a mile to the south. Beyond the hamlet the battered Batangan Peninsula, once lush and beautiful, bulges into the South China Sea. Out there Communist soldiers lurk in deep-dug tunnels. There are no Viet Cong flags, but the peasants say there is no question who is in control.

At night, they say, big guns fire into the peninsula as they have again and again over the eight years that American, Korean and South Vietnamese forces have been trying to make it safe for troops and nation-building.

Government soldiers come down the hill by day. A few peasants ride out to work their fields or tend cattle while the sun is high.

A few of them stand in a dusty path a quarter-mile short of My Lai 4. The path winds through a village where survivors moved after the massacre. Cows nibble among broken sandbags and wander through shacks that were flattened by bombs and artillery last spring. Red hibiscus blooms by gray heaps of rotted thatch. Swallows twitter and dart after dragonflies. Desultory rifle fire cracks not far away.

The peasants try to recall the exact date of the My Lai massacre and just how many died, but they have trouble keeping their disasters straight.

"It has happened so many times — so many soldiers, so many killings," says a man coming back from the fields pushing an irrigation pump on a bicycle.

My Lai, yes, but then there were My Hoi, My Khe, Co Lay. Buddhist investigators have reported more than 350 other civilians killed around the peninsula the same day.

There have been reports of massacres by Korean troops, 1,500 in one operation, 200 in another, and the constant depredations of mines, bombs and shells.

"One day two killed, one day 10 killed, one day 12 killed."

MY LAI . . . five years after massacre survivors kept in refugee camps. AP

Not that he has forgotten My Lai. He was outside the hamlet at his well when artillery started "prepping" the area to make it safer for assault troops at dawn. He saw the helicopters land, heard the shooting, saw the wounded fleeing.

"Blood was spilling from their bodies, running all over the road," he says.

A middle-aged woman says she lived through the slaughter by staying hidden in a bunker, a feature necessary as a roof to householders of the Batangan. Most of those who died had left their bunkers, she says, the Viet Cong had gone, and they thought it would be safer outside.

A boy of 12 says he was in a bunker with seven of his family. A grenade killed six of them. He was at the back and lived.

The motorbike driver had been away from home. He came back to find his family dead, including four children, the oldest 7. He does not hate Americans, he says, "not civilians like you. But when we see someone with a gun we remember, and we are angry." He looks it.

A man pedals up the road, stops and says to an American: "What are you doing here? Don't you know the Americans killed many people here? What do you think now? What are you going to do about it?" He rides off.

These people make no sentimental journeys to the famous My Lai 4. They come to snatch a little rice from the earth while they can. They are in no position to appreciate what the name My Lai means to Americans. They don't even call it by its government name; they call the place Tu Cung and always have.

The Batangan had been unsafe for faraway governments for hundreds of years before the Viet Minh started plotting against the French. In 1965 it started becoming unsafe for its inhabitants, generally supporters of the Viet Cong.

The first major American battle of the war was fought there in August 1965. For five years the peninsula was a "free-fire zone." There were sweeps by Korean troops, notorious for cruelty. Then Task Force Barker and Charlie Company with orders to destroy the 48th Viet Cong Battalion 250 to 300-men—and the hamlet where it was said to go to ground.

Then in January 1969 an 8,500-man sweep moved out civilians and disciplined the land with artillery, naval guns and plows.

The gains were wiped out quickly during the enemy offensive last April. Villagers told it this way to American medical workers in nearby Quang Ngai:

The Communists appeared on a hill above Phu Quy resettlement village before dawn on April 14. For 15 minutes they ringed the settlement with shellfire, then they walked in and took over without a civilian killed.

The Communist troops burned the resettlement site, led the people to their old homes and held a song-and-dance cultural evening for them, the account goes. Then they departed, and the allied bombing and artillery began.

Who has killed more, the Communists or the allies? One peasant finally says all the dead he knows have been killed by the allies. The others nod.

Some civilians die when the Communists and government troops fight, he explains. But the Communists don't deliberately kill the people; they live with the people but the government forces "shoot from afar."

The ambush-weary allies have never trusted the people of the Batangan, and they have had little reason to. Apparently that has not changed.

Most of the survivors of My Lai 4 are relatively safe for the time being. They live five miles away on a sandbank that the Tra Khuc River is not using right now.

For shade they have a forest of red and yellow government flags and maybe 100 green tents where they and other Batangan refugees live crowded under the eyes of government officials.

A miniature old herdsman in black pajamas and plastic sun hat, one eye drunken and blind as a pearl, says the peasants get permission to come out of their fields on the frings of government-controlled territory but still are picked up and harassed.

He points to his pocket — "That is how much rice we get to eat every day," he says. "If they just would let us come out here we could have plenty to eat."

A man with a long-handled paddy hoe declares the people are all impatient to get back, artillery or no.

"They probably wouldn't hit us," he says. "And if the shells start falling on us we can run, just like before."

1776 Quebec Attack To Be Re-Enacted

PITTSTON, Maine (AP) — A wilderness trek across rugged Indian trails in Maine and Quebec over which Benedict Arnold led Revolutionary War soldiers two centuries ago will be reenacted as part of the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The 335-mile march will cover the route Arnold took when he led 1,150 American soldiers in a vain assault on Quebec City.

That march was before Arnold became his country's most famous traitor, and to commemorate that occasion, 1,150 men plan to slip boats into the Kennebec River at Pittston in September, 1975, and begin a four-to six-week journey.

Arnold lost a quarter of his party to desertion, sickness, exposure and drowning on that venture.

"I should hope we'd have better luck than that this time," said White Nichols of Wiscasset.

Nichols is president of the Arnold Expedition Historical Society, which is sponsoring the journey as part of the bicentennial observance. The society was founded to chart the trail Arnold took and acquire easements along its route so that it can be preserved. Members say they consider themselves a conservation and historical group, but have no interest in glorifying Arnold.

The group will depart from the Major Colburn House, home of the builder of the 220 bateaux Arnold used and the place where Arnold spent his last night before leaving on the journey.

The route across sparsely populated western Maine and southern Quebec has changed little since Arnold's time.

Half of the party will paddle up the broad Kennebec River and the rest will walk along the banks, just as Arnold's men did. When they reach Bingham, they will leave the river and march westward on ancient Indian trails across mountains to the Carry Ponds and Flagstaff Lake, then follow the Dead River to the Quebec border.

From there the trip will be overland to the Chaudiere River, which will take them across the province to the St. Lawrence River, four miles downstream from Quebec City.

Arnold's men were plagued by lack of food over much of the trip.

"We are almost famished for want of provisions," read the diary of Capt. Henry Dearborn. "Some of the footmen, who were almost starved ... this day killed my dog and another dog and ate them."

Water leaked into their bateaux and spoiled much of their food. Some of the men ate boiled boot tops and shoestrings.

Their modern counterparts plan to be better prepared, taking along protected food, medical supplies and three doctors.

"We'll rough it just as much as we can and be as near as possible to the original," said Nichols. "There will be a reasonable amount of danger."

U.N. Guides More Than Glamorous

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Those guides at the United Nations are glamorous as Eve, but beware of calling them glamor girls. Many want it known they are deeply into the brain scene.

Officials who supervise their training and duties regard the 47 young women from 29 countires as representative of a serious-minded generation emerging in many parts of the world.

Once U.N. diplomats decorated their cocktail parties by inviting a covey of girl guides. Today, "even if they invited us, I doubt if many would attend," says Sabina Buettner, a guide from West Berlin.

Miss Buettner, nearing the end of the standard 27-month tour, is saving her money to study interior design in New York. As a senior guide, she earns $726 a month. The guides, ages 20 to 30, start at $665. They are picked from more than 400 applicants a year.

At least six guides are university students. Others attend courses, some at the U.N. language school, adding to the two languages most already speak. Blonde Damira Buzdovacic of Yogoslavia can give a tour in five languages — her native Serbo-Croat plus English, French, Russian and Italian. She's studying for a master's degree in international law.

Mona Asberom of Asmara, Ethiopia, is writing a master's thesis for the University of Pittsburgh on the U.N. Security Council.

Tassanee Amsamarnk of Bangkok, wife of Lt. Samran Amsamarnk of the royal Thai navy, has one degree in linguistics and is seeking a master's in education at New York University in the teaching of English as a second language.

Mrs. Amsamarnk, a slender brunette of great poise and good humor, is one of the 15 married guides. She loves to ask visiting tourists to guess her country.

They answer Japan or China, and to put them on the right track I have to ask if they remember the movie, 'The King and I,' " she said.

Booklearning with the United Nations itself starts with a three-week course on the world organization and includes daily briefings by U.N. officials. At one recent morning pep talk, Noel Brown of the U.N. political department told the guides:

"The U.N. is part and parcel of mankind's efforts to evolve planetary order, manage conflict and raise living standards. This is a daring enterprise, and you are part of it."

Close to one million persons visit the United Nations each and take one-hour official guide tours. Students, who make up 60 per cent of the visitors, pay 75 cents. Adults need $2.

Each guide leads four or five tours a day. When language is English, guides and groups of 20 to 30 visitors are matched at random. In the first half-minute, the girl has to size up her group and scale her lecture to its understanding and background.

"The girls stimulate interest using their own ingenuity," says Stephen Przylucki, chief of the U.N. visitors' service. "Many people don't appreciate this and look on it as a glamorous job. Actually, it is arduous and challenging to hold the attention."

Guide Irina Berezhkova was trying to explain the empty Security Council Chamber to a group of chattering Brooklyn teen-agers.

"Interpreter? What's an interpreter, miss?" a boy in a grafitti-covered jacket asked.

Irina switched from English to her native Russian to get attention. Back in English, she told the now interested children how the five official U.N. languages are translated simultaneously and can be dialed on earphones at each seat. Mrs. Berezhkova's husband, Sergei, is a U.N. interpreter in Russian.

If the guides have a common gripe, it is about inattentive high school students too bored to ask questions.

Sixth graders ask intelligent questions provided they've had backgrounding from good teachers, Miss Asberom of Ethiopia said. Older groups, if boys and girls are together, often pay more attention to each other than to the tour.

Miss Buettner finds that many student visitors arrive too sleepy for dialogue. Some arise at 5 a.m. to catch buses for their grand tour of New York, she explained. "Then they rush through Rockefeller Center and Radio City and come here. No wonder it goes in one ear and out the other when we try to explain the Security Council."

Christene Rieder, guide service operations officer, said the present guides are not only attractive and personable but "the most serious girls we've had in 10 years . . . very involved in world problems, especially the environment and very gung ho about the U.N. — but they get so disappointed with teen-agers who aren't interested."

Harlem Residents Cooperate, Wage Private War On Crime

NEW YORK (AP) — Allan Kelso, a genial construction worker, now steps out of his apartment for the mail with a little more confidence he'll live to make it back again.

And his wife, Annette, isn't worrying quite so much these days about drug addicts hiding in the building's elevator.

Kelso and his neighbors shucked off the adage about "not getting involved" after they suffered eight muggings and five burglaries in their building in 10 months. They now proudly claim that things have drastically improved since they started their own private war on crime.

First, the 100 or so tenants began building patrols and signing in each stranger at their red brick apartment house in the heart of Harlem. They also got a policeman to show them how to make their building more or less burglar proof.

Kelso and his neighbors may not realize it, but they are riding the wave of the future as far as cracking down on crime goes, according to Benjamin Ward, New York City's deputy police commissioner for community affairs.

"American policing is going through a revolution," says Ward, 46, a father of five who graduated with honors from law school while also holding down a regular job on the police force.

Ward says police departments throughout the country are using a number of schemes to make the average citizen part of the anticrime team. The New York City police probably lead the nation in the extent of these programs, he says.

It is all part of a developing philosophy that "the police are there only to assist," says Ward, adding that neighbors must realize "you've got to do something to help yourself."

The new approach is apparently hitting a responsive chord. The city is having no trouble expanding its force of unpaid and unarmed auxiliary police from 2,000 to 6,500. These volunteers patrol the streets with nightsticks and walkie-talkies after finishing their regular jobs.

The auxiliaries now provide most of the city's uniformed foot patrols.

The police are also beginning to give some encouragement to the city's 75 or so civilian patrols, which have sprouted in response to special crime problems in their neighborhoods. These patrols now operate frequently out of precinct station houses, their members getting special identification cards and some police training.

Ward says another aspect of civilian involvement in crime prevention are the block watchers organizations. These groups are being formed from persons as diverse as the doorman at the Empire State Building and invalid women, who mostly just look out their apartment windows.

Rome Airport Officials Promise Improvements

ROME (AP) — Rome's international airport at Fiumicino is still a nightmare for travelers, but officials are promising happier landings.

Workmen are building new arrival and departure areas and a mechanized luggage system, installing air conditioning and extending one of the two runways.

Airport authorities say the bulk of the work should be completed by June, in time for the tourist crush, although airline officials and others are adopting a wait-and-see attitude.

"The situation is obviously less than ideal," said a TWA spokesman, "but it would be worse if they weren't doing anything about it."

Many travelers arriving at the big airport 22 miles from Rome contract "Fiumicinitis," a nervous disorder brought on by lack of luggage, lack of food and lack of transportation into Rome.

The situation has improved since a year ago when wildcat strikes by ground personnel, almost weekly, left passengers to tote their bags across runways in search of immigration and customs.

how do you add it up?

For information, call Journal-Star Circulation 473-7341

Your newspaperboy son spends considerable time and energy in organizing his business and in serving his customers. Is it all worthwhile? How does it add up?

These questions sometimes arise when he becomes a bit discouraged, when he feels he has too much to do, or when he thinks he's learned about all there is to know from his business.

Let's look at the situation from several different directions.

1. If your son did not have a newspaper business, what would he be doing in his spare time? By remaining idle, he would be passing up an opportunity eagerly sought by thousands of boys to gain valuable business experience which is an important supplement to formal education in the classroom. More than that, idle youngsters often get into trouble.

2. If your son really has more than he can do, he may need your help in establishing priorities. What is most worthwhile? What will help him most in developing the personality traits that will make him a happy, self-reliant citizen? Of course he will want to have time for fun and play. The key to the situation is the proper choice of activities and the budgeting of his time. The lesson he learns from making these decisions is tremendously important in itself.

3. There's no such thing as learning all there is to know from his business. Meeting and dealing with people is what he will be doing the rest of his life. There's no place to stop in developing the ability to get along with others. There's always something NEW to be learned from his customers. And as he continues to learn, he also continues to earn.

4. In trying to evaluate the benefits to be derived from your son's newspaper business, it is necessary to look both at the present and at the future. Right now you can see how, through his business, he is becoming more self-reliant and independent. He is more at ease both with adults and his own contemporaries. He has a broader outlook on life. He is happier, more alert, more responsive.

This is wonderful—right now, today. But what is even more important, he is building a secure foundation for adult life that will benefit him over all the years ahead.

Yes, newspaperboy training really adds up.

So, keep alert to your son's moods, problems, and disappointments. When he seems discouraged or a bit fed up, have a friendly chat with him. Review the solid advantages of keeping his business and developing it to its fullest potential.

Keep him busy, learning, and earning

'Bama Farm Group Effective

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Alabama Cattlemen's Association has to be one of the most effective farm organizations in the United States.

Virtually every board large enough to hold a sign urges the traveler along Alabama roads to eat more beef.

There is a local chapter of the association in every county in the state. The total membership is 13,321, making it the largest state organization of cattlemen in the United States.

Better evidence of their power is the fact that Alabama Cattlemen pay no property taxes on cattle or farm equipment. They also have a very low land tax and no sales tax on the inputs they need to operate farms and ranches in the state.

Unlike Nebraska, which has its beef men divided into two groups, the Livestock Feeders and the Stockgrowers, and its promotion of beef handled by yet another organization, the Nebraska Beef Promotion Foundation, they are all rolled into the same group in Alabama.

Funding comes from a 10-cent a head check off on the first sale of beef cattle and calves and is collected by the markets in the state.

Rapid Growth

Cattle production in Alabama has grown by leaps and bounds in recent years. In 1951 there were 691,000 head of beef cattle producing an income of $61.2 million. In 1972 the state produced 951,000 calves worth an estimated $170 million.

The improvement in quality is also recognized by an increase in the average value per head produced. There is a growing interest in feeding cattle to heavier weights operations to background calves up to yearling size. This makes the cattle more attractive to feedlot operators.

A new practice of growing rye and other small grains for winter pasture is producing a better quality feeder animal that can compete with good cattle anywhere.

Peanut farmers grow rye for winter pasture and some low quality land is being upgraded for pasture operations at an annual cost of $40 an acre. Sometimes as many as three head are grazed on a single acre of the lush fertilized pasture which has to be reseeded each year.

Information System

One new service the association has just launched is a market information system that operates on a 24 hour basis.

The service can be reached from anywhere in the United States by telephone. Sales are conducted Monday through Friday somewhere in the state and the data is recorded for use in the telephone market service.

Belonging to the association is regarded as a social advantage. Most cattle operations in the state are small by Nebraska standards, with 20 head an average operation.

A 300-head operation is regarded as huge. The larger ranches and farms do have top quality livestock, but some of the 40-acre and mule operations seem to lack the resources to provide enough to eat for cattle on a year round basis.

Management practices vary from superb to very bad, but the University at Auburn has launched an agressive improvement program that includes bull-testing programs and promotion of better cattle raising practices in the state.

Truck Load Difficult

The small size of herds makes it difficult to put together a truck load of feeder cattle for transportation to Nebraska.

Auction markets typically sell calves or any cattle one head at a time. Order buyers buy the bulk of the cattle for feeders at the auction.

Transportation of cattle from Montgomery, Ala., to Nebraska was estimated to cost $800 a load by a local trucker.

The Alabama Cattlemen's Association office at Montgomery will send any inquiring livestock feeder information on sale dates, auction locations and prices upon request.

Paul Guyer, extension livestock specialist at the NU College of Agriculture in Lincoln also has information on sources of feeder cattle in Alabama.

2 UNL Faculty Members Named 'ACE Fellows'

Washington, D.C. — Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty members have been selected by the American Council on Education as ACE Fellows in the 1973-74 Academic Administration Inernship Program.

They are:

—Dr. Lodus Rhodes, assistant professor of sociology and Ethnic Studies;

—Dr. Patricia Sailor, associate dean of the College of Home Economics and professor of clothing, textiles, and design.

ACE President Roger W. Heyns said they are among 40 fellows selected from a field of 134 candidates nominated by chief executives of higher education institutions across the nation.

The Academic Administration Internship Program, established in 1964, is designed to strenthen leadership in American higher education by increasing the number and improving the preparation of persons available for positions in academic administration.

Typically, each ACE Fellow during the nine-month internship, either on the home campus or on a host campus, is assigned to a top administrative officer both to observe and to participate in policy and decision-making activities.

Dr. Patricia Sailor

Dr. Louis Rhodes

Fellows attend fall and spring seminars in Chicago and Washington on the problems of academic administration, undertake certain assigned readings, and produce an analytical report.

Charles G. Dobbins, director of the internship program, reports that in the first six years of operation, 85% of the 238 participatns made significant advances into positions of leadership in academic administration. Thirty-one became presidents, and 80 others became vice presidents, vice chancellors, provosts, or deans. The average age of those selected as ACE Fellows is 36.

Dr. Rhodes, a native of Dallas, Tex., joined the NU faculty as instructor and coordinator of African-American Studies in 1970. He holds B.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Kansas State University.

While attending Kansas State, he served as a member of the Counseling Center staff and graduate assistant in the Office of Student Affairs.

Dr. Sailor holds an A.B. degree from Indiana University, an M.S. from the University of Tennessee, and a Ph.D. from the Ohio State University.

Prior to joining the NU faculty in 1968, she was a staff member at the University of Rhode Island, Colorado State University, and the University of Texas. She is currently national president of Omicron Nu, home economics honorary and is a member of Sigma Xi honorary. Her major teaching responsibilities are in the area of fashion merchandising. She also coordinates the honors program for the College of Home Economics.

The American Council on Education, founded in 1918, is a council of most of the organizations and institutions in American higher education. Its purpose is to advance education and educational methods through comprehensive voluntary and cooperative action on the part of its members. It also has important liaison functions with the federal government.

Which is the ninth best in the league.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Better not bad mouth Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. The St. Louis Cardinals just drafted Purdue tackle Dale Butz. Dale is 6 foot 7, weighs 280, and is said to be very fond of Uncle Earl.

Have you seen those bumper stickers that say Milk Drinkers Are Better Lovers? The California Dairy Association has standing orders for 250,000 of them from bumper sticker lovers . . . hopefully some of them will drink milk.

There is a new theory floating around that may tell the motives behind selling grain bins from bin sites.

The theory is that government officials handling grain owned by the government are unhappy about the service they have been getting from privately owned elevators and the high costs resulting from that service.

They are also said to be unhappy about the relative inefficiencies related to storing grain in farm bins, so they plan to sell all the grain bins on the sites. Later, as the need will surely arise, they plan to build huge regional terminals owned by the government. All government-owned grain would be delivered to those terminals rather than to the traditional bin sites or to private elevators.

There are those who have been pushing for strategic reserves of grain which would take the worry out of grain shortages. It is a fine theory and may be very accurate.

The idea that the government could own such a strategic reserve is comforting to many, but to me, it is a picture of a stranglehold over the market. We never would see much of a price increase in grains if such a supply was held over the market.

M. J. Hankins of Stanton, a cattle feeder and rancher, has issued a news release suggesting the consumer work to see that farmers receive a fair price so food production can be stimulated. Hankins points to the average income of farmers as a cause of concern for consumers about their grocery supply.

Hankins points out that the nation ate 8% more beef in January of '73 than it did in the same month of 1972.

"The housewife really sets the price of beef by what she decides is the amount she is willing to pay for beef," he says in his release. He is probably right.

Nebraska's dairy farmers are losing one of their top research people at the University. Dr. Bob Appelman is moving to the greener pastures of the University of Minnesota. The question of his replacement lies with how the Department of Animal Science makes out with the funds from the Legislature for their budget.

Another blow to the state's young diairymen is the closeout of the state prison herd, which is scheduled to happen in the near future.

Many a young 4-H member got his or her start in the dairy business with top quality animals from the prison herd. Nebraska desperately needs to improve the quality of its dairy animals if it is to compete in the dairy industry.

Production per head is still below the better dairy states. A part of the problem is poor dairy management, which is not going to get better without prodding by good extension dairymen and by the hard school of economics.

The best management can be limited by the genetic potential of the cows in the herd. A good source of top quality breeding stock is essential if the state is to improve its production record of milk and expand its growing cheese industry.

Shorthorn breeders in South Dakota are very pleased that their bulls are showing the top rate of gain in the Ideal Beef Center Bull Test at Ideal, S. D., with an average gain of 3.89 lbs. per day. Overall average at the test station is 3.38 lbs.

The primary purpose of testing bulls is to select those that gain fastest in the hope they sire steers that gain faster than the cattle we have now.

If you are buying cattle from the Southwest, Texas, Oklahoma or New Mexico, check them for scabies. Forty-five counties in those three states have cattle embargoes because of the disease, actually more accurately described as an insect infestation.

State Business Lags Behind National Pace

The overall trend of business activity in Nebraska was up during the month of December but most of the state's economic sectors did not experience the sharp activity increases which characterized much of the national economy during that month.

According to Business in Nebraska, monthly publication of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bureau of Business Research, the state dollar-volume index for December was at a level of 115.5% of the 1967 average and one-half a percentage point higher than the revised November level. The national dollar volume index was two percentage points higher than November.

Most of the increase in the Nebraska dollar-volume index from November to December resulted from a large increase in the agricultural index, attributed principally to rising agricultural prices.

In contrast to the agricultural dollar volume increases, most other economic indicators showed little change or even declined from November to December. The Nebraska index increased 11.2% from 1971 to 1972, compared with 9.9% nationally, however.

The importance of rising agricultural prices in maintaining the growth of Nebraska dollar-volume index can be seen by noting that the agricultural physical volume index (adjusted for price changes) actually showed a 6.7% drop from 1971 to 1972 in contrast to an 11% growth in the dollar-volume index.

In addition to relatively high agricultural prices, a major factor in the strength of the Nebraska economy in 1972 was a sharp increase in construction activity.

The growth of retail activity in the state from 1971 to 1972 was relatively uniform throughout the state with all regions experiencing an increaseof at least 7.5%. The increase of commodity prices during the year was 3.4%, so a little more than half of the retail increase represented a real growth in volume.

Here is a summary of Nebraska's net taxable retail sales by regions (unadjusted for price changes).

3 More Names Added To Traffic Death Count

By The Associated Press

Three more names were added to the Nebraska traffic death count Sunday.

J. Raymond Dorsey, 47, Police said the driver left the scene, but later a 42-year-old executive director of United Community Services of the Midlands, died in a hospital Saturday night of internal injuries resulting from a traffic accident March 10.

Dorsey moved to Omaha in September of 1968 to head the UCS organization from Tucson, Ariz., where he was executive director for Tucson's United Community Campaign.

Douglas County sheriff's officers said his car was in collision with an auto driven by Jane O'Keefe, 20, of Omaha. She did not require hospitalization.

Officers said Dorsey did not enter the hospital until the next day, but had recently been in the intensive care unit.

Police said Cleo Landers, 47, of Omaha was killed early Sunday when he was struck by a car while walking along Interstate 480 in Omaha.

The deaths raised the Nebraska highway fatalty toll for the year to 70, or one ahead of the figure on March 18, 1972.

Ann Harvey, 18, of Lincoln, was killed shortly before midnight Saturday as she tried to cross Cornhusker Highway in the Capital City, police reported.

Officers identified the driver of the car as Arnold B. O'Connor, 43, of Lincoln.

Miss Harvey, of 4524 So. 47th, was a senior at Southeast High School and a member of Westminister Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by her father, Rodney; a brother, Kevin, and two sisters, Lisa and Mimi, all at home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirk, Lincoln, and Mrs. D. C. Harvey, Waunita.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Nebraska's grain elevators are mostly plugged to the rafters with grain they are unable to move, and since this situation is not improving rapidly, let's look at out-of-state grain market factors this week.

The high price of soybeans has led to French government efforts to grow them at home. French experts believe that the oil seed crop can be grown if the Common Market tariff on imported beans remains in the $6 to $7 range.

South Africa has large areas of pastureland where cattle are starving. One paper tells of a farmer who is feeding newspaper to his cattle. The other African countries are in trouble for feed as well. Mauritania, Senegal, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad are all reported to have cattle dying of hunger and thirst.

People are believed to be very short of food in these areas as well. United Nations food organizations are seeking donations to keep the people alive but transportation in the area is primitive at best.

Iran is going to need more wheat this year because of a short crop. Australia is offering a premium price for wheat to its farmers but limited the premium to one year. Chile is so short of food it has gone on a rationing program.

Our clumsy export and transportation system continues to struggle with the grain movement problems. Elevators at Destrehan, La., Houston, Texas, Corpus Christi, Tex., and Mobile, Ala., all have had tieups in the past two weeks.

Thierstein Says 'Council Cannot Shirk Its Duty'

"If the City Council would vote to adopt the goals and policies committee report in total, I feel it would be shirking its duty," City Council candidate Bill Thierstein said.

"That report is a fine one, thoughtfully done and carefully put together," Thierstein said. "But the fact of the matter is that the City Council, with its week-to-week decision-making, is the on-going goals and policies committee for the city.

"The City Council cannot shirk its duty by simply adopting in total the report of another group and saying that all of these goals and policies will be our goals and policies from here on," he continued. "If conditions change, and situations change rapidly.

"The City Council should keep the recommendations of the goals and policies committee as background study material," he said. "But it should not make it more than it was meant to be — sound advice from a group of concernred citizens who met for several months and expressed their opinions.

"I favor use of the vast store of information in the goals and policies report as valuable background information. I do not favor adopting it as the only guide to future actions of the city."

5 People In Custody After Shooting Spree

Five persons were in custody of police Sunday following a shooting incident outside the Outpost Tavern near Lincoln.

Police said Aviors Krums, 30, of Lincoln was in fair condition and Mike Holms, 28, of Lincoln was in good condition at a hospital Sunday.

Officials said they were studying the filing of charges of assault with intent to wound or maim against three men and one woman. The second woman was being held as a material witness.

Police said the five persons recently returned from the seige at Wounded Knee, S. D. The shooting incident took place late Saturday night.

The gun believed to have been used in the shooting was located Sunday in an apartment at 23rd and Y by Lancaster County deputy sheriffs.

Hoppe Heads Building Material Dealers

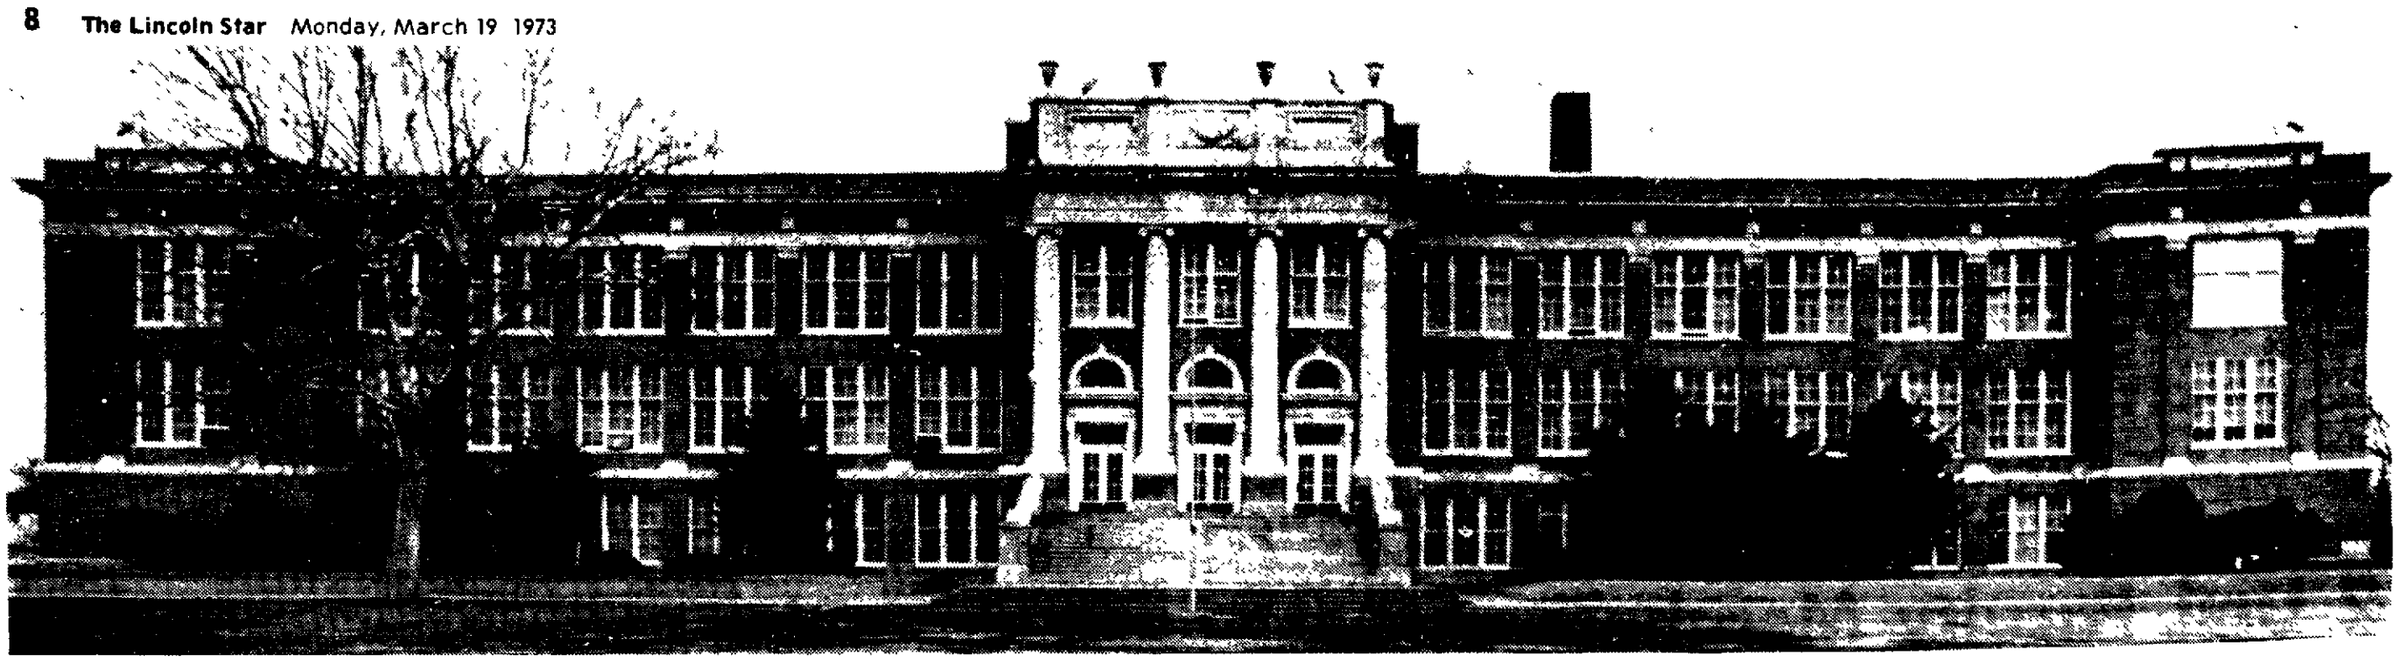

Omaha — John Hoppe, president of Hoppe Lumber Company of Lincoln, was chosen head of the Nebraska Building Material Dealers Association during the group's 82nd annual convention in Omaha. Stan Sheets of Superior was elected vice president. The association's annual $250 scholarship was awarded to Dale Rood of Wahoo. Scholarships of $200 each from the Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoppe Memorial Fund went to Ronald Mayfield of Nemaha and Charles Barr of Liberty.

Ewing Livestock Dealer Fined $500

Washington (UPI) — William A. Hobbs of Ewing, Neb. has been fined $500 and permanently enjoined by a Federal Court from failing to file an annual report as required by the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. Hobbs is registered as a livestock dealer and purchases livestock throughout Nebraska and in southeastern South Dakota.

Styles Mixed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Architecture of Lincoln school buildings is as mixed as the educational techniques used inside them

While traditional classrooms still remain, Rousseau School at 3701 So. 33rd features an open media center in the middle of the building, built in 1964.

Kahoa School, Lincoln's newest built in 1972 at 7700 Leighton, also has multipurpose rooms which replace the traditional classroom concept.

Outside, most of the buildings are eclectic — that is, they represent a collection of many architectural styles.

Hayard, Lincoln's oldest school, is an excellent example of eclecticism, with influences ranging from the early 17th Century to the early 20th

The original center portion of Hayward was erected in 1904 Its entrance is a grand mix The broken arch at top center comes from late Renaissance The tympanum or top sculptured area and the cornice are reminiscent of Greek and Roman styles The balls and arch are of the Baroque period, the 17th and 18th Centruries.

Most of the school buildings are "married to a center-line," or symmetrical, particularly the entrances. Whittier is the best example of severe symmetry It resembles a French palace or government building typical of 18th Century Renaissance architecture.

The schools too can be identified by decade in more recent years.

Lincoln High, for example, is a monumental structure built in 1915. Additions came in 1927, 1956, and 1964.

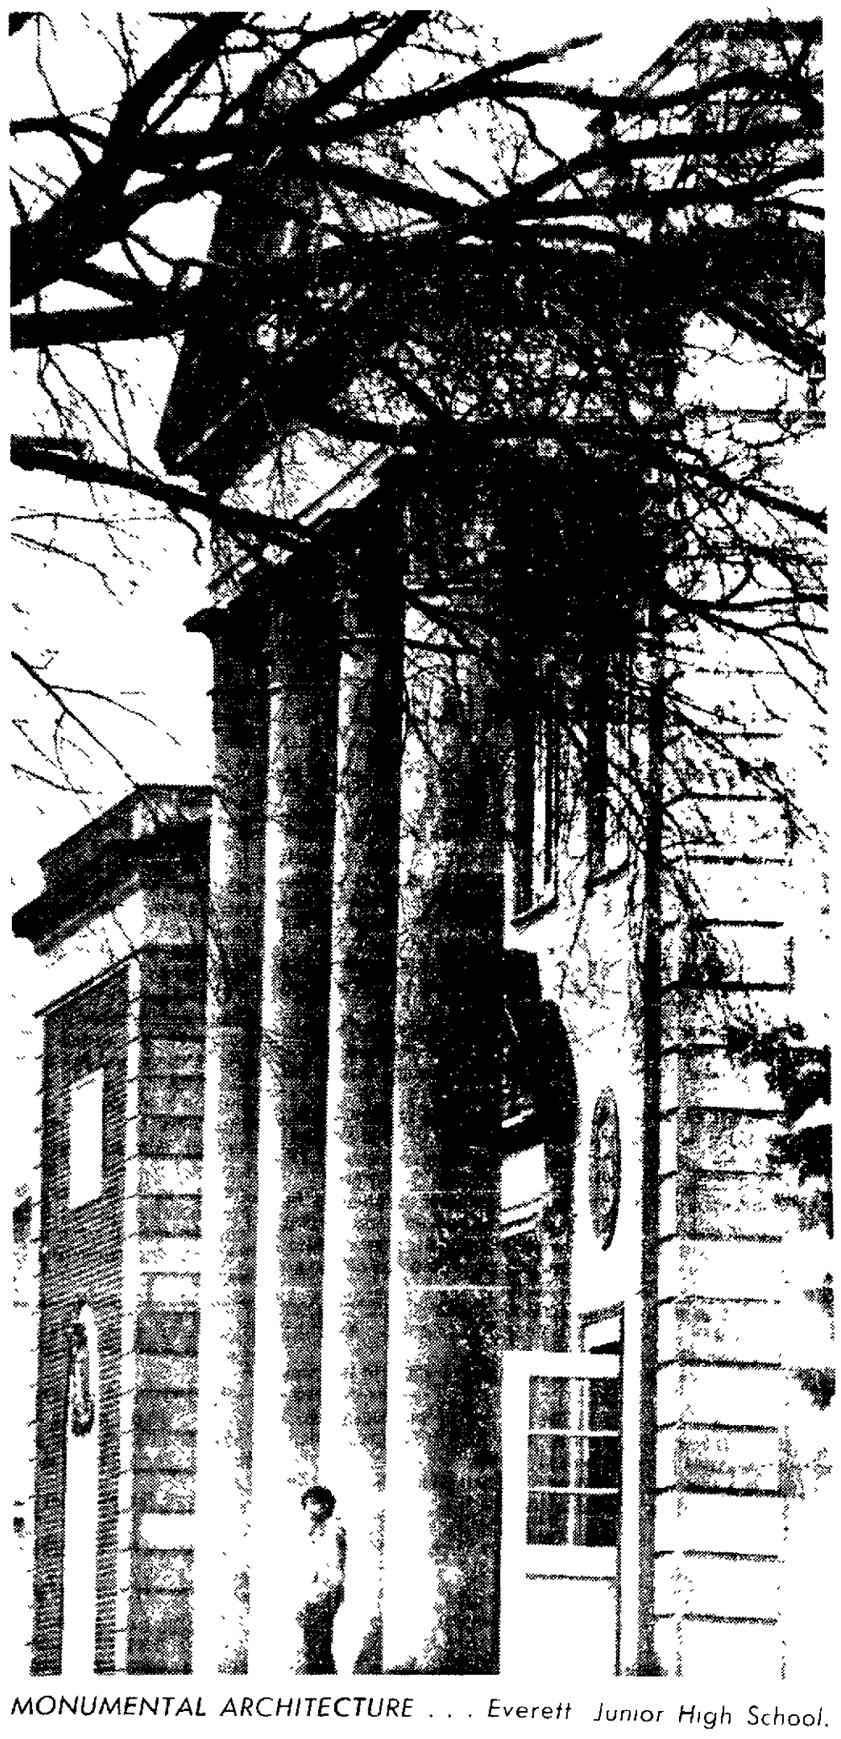

Northeast built in 1941, is reminiscent of U S government buildings of the 30s It is characterized by vertical pilasters that extend all three stories

Southeast, completed in 1955, spreads out in contemporary fashion — the most common school building style And East, built in 1967, represents the giant sprawl of many modern schools.

Everett Junior High School, at 1123 C, was built in 1928 The sculptural decoration above the entrance comes from the Baroque period. The columns are free-standing Roman

Exile Describes Events Leading Up To Watergate

©The New York Times

Miami — An associate of four convicted Watergate conspirators says he was recruited for a team that planned strong-arm activities against "hippies" and "traitors" in various parts of the country last year.

Reinaldo Pico, a 36-year-old Cuban exile who accompanied the four twice to Washington for such operations last May, said in an interview that he believed their activities bore the Nixon administration's "official seal of approval."

The group's projects and intentions, as Pico described them in a voluble, gesture-punctuated Spanish, would have run parallel to sabotage efforts widely attributed to Republican agents in last year's political campaigns.

His sometime confederates, who were arrested with bugging equipment in the offices of the Democratic National Committee on June 17, 1972, had been organized by officials of the White House and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Pico, a veteran of the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961, said he had been left out of the June 17 foray and did not know why. He denied any prior knowledge of the burglary and wiretapping scheme.

In his first public discussion of the affair, Pico appeared loyal to his old comrade-in-arms, Bernald L. Barker.

Barker, a Miami real estate broker who is a former agent of the Central Intelligence Agency, pleaded guilty during the Watergate trial to burglary, eavesdropping and conspiracy, and he is now in jail awaiting sentencing.

Pico went to Miami in December, 1960, and in the following year he was put in touch with Barker, then active in organizing the CIA-backed Cuban invasion, in which Pico participated. Barker is known to friends as "Macho."

'Confidence'

"My impression has always been that Macho was a man who had the confidence of the United States government," Pico said. "First with Eisenhower, then with Kennedy, then with Johnson, and I thought with Nixon, too."

"I thought this thing (last year's operations) had an official seal of approval of the United States government," he said at another point.

On May 2, 1972, Barker summoned Pico to his real estate office to tell him that J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, had been found dead that morning and would lie in state at the Capitol the next day.

"There are hippies and men who are traitors to this country and democracy," he quoted Barker as telling him, "who are going to make demonstrations and perpetrate an outrage to Hoover."

Antiwar demonstrations had been scheduled before Hoover's death. The protests, on the west steps of the Capitol May 3 and May 4, included an appearance by Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, now on trial in the Pentagon papers case.

Flew To Washington

Barker, Pico and six or seven other men — "almost all who worked with Macho" — flew to Washington, checked into a hotel and "awaited instructions" from a source unknown to Pico.

At about 6 p.m. on May 3, he said, the men went to the Capitol. Barker engaged in a heated argument with a long-haired young man and, in the midst of it, Pico said, he knocked the protester down.

Frank A. Sturgis, who accompanied the group and who was later arrested at the Watergate complex, also hit one of the antiwar demonstrators, Pico said. Both attackers were immediately "seized" by Capitol policemen.

As they were led down the steps, Pico said a third member of the group explained to a police lieutenant that the two in custody were "anti-Communists" and "good men." They were then freed with a warning, Pico said, and left.

He acknowledged that the Barker group had gone to the Capitol to disrupt the rally. He explained that the protesters followed a "Communist tactic". They didn't fight back.

There had been reports that the Capitol operation, unconfirmed by the police, was the first project mounted by the Barker group. Pico's is the first public account by a participant, however.

The effort to "end" the peace rally went virtually unnoticed and the men quietly returned to Miami on the following day, he said.

"We saw that persons went there (to the rally) from all parts of the country," he replied, apparently meaning that the group felt some kind of conspiracy had been confirmed.

About three weeks later (federal officials have fixed the date as May 22), Pico said six members of the group returned to Washington, under false names (Pico's was "Joe Granada") and checked into the Hamilton Hotel.

"Macho told me there were persons who were going to protest in fornt of the White House or other places and asked me if I was willing to go," he said. "I said I was. I always consider that Macho was inspired by true patriotic fervor."

Met Defendants

A government witness, Thomas J. Gregory, testified in the Watergate trial that he had met in the Hamilton Hotel with most or all of the seven defendants in the case, including G. Gordon Liddy, E. Howard Hunt Jr. and James W. McCord Jr.

On May 26, the Barker group moved to the Watergate Hotel and was joined there by Liddy and Hunt. It was then that initial wiretaps were covertly placed on the Democrat Party telephones.

Pico said he had not seen Liddy, Hunt, McCord or anyone else not in the Miami group within the hotel rooms.

In addition to Barker and Sturgis, the conspirators from Miami who made both trips and who were later arrested in the Watergate were Eugenio Rolando Martinez and Virgilio Ramon Gonzalez.

The six men left Washington, with not a single protester sighted throughout their second stay, and returned to Miami on May 30. After they arrived, Barker spoke with Pico again.

'Ready To Go?'

"Macho told me that demonstrations were going to be carried out in other parts of the country. He asked me, 'are you ready to go?' I said, yes."

Barker did not elaborate on the future activities.

Witnesses at the Watergate trial and elsewhere have said that McCord and other officials of the President's campaign organization had arranged to infiltrate radical groups and were spying on them in May.

The Nixon committee had budgeted $250,000 in cash for such activities, trial testimony showed. There also has been evidence of payments used in efforts to disrupt opposition rallies and speeches.

Pico was interviewed by FBI agents on a number of occasions but presumably satisfied the government that he had had no part in the bugging itself. He read about the arrests on June 18.

PASSENGER KILLED . . . when derailed train hits fabricating plant.

Train Mishap In Ohio Kills One

EAST PALESTINE, Ohio (AP) — One man was killed and at least 19 persons injured early Sunday when five cars of Amtrak's Broadway Limited passenger train jumped tracks in a heavy snowstorm, police reported.

Four of the five derailed cars overturned on their sides, a witness said, splintering several utility poles and shearing off the front of the a manufacturing firm near the tracks.

There was no damage estimate.

The cause of the derailment, which occurred in East Palestine, west of the Pennsylvania line and about 15 miles south of Youngstown, was under investigation.

The first eight cars of the train went on to Chicago with all the passengers who wanted to continue the trip. The train — which had been en route from New York to Chicago — stopped in Salem to pick up 16 persons treated at a hospital.

The dead man was identified as George Wintoniak, 53, of Haverford, Pa., a Penn Central railroad staff engineer traveling as a passenger. The train was on Penn Central tracks.

Columbiana County Coroner William A. Kolozsi said the man died of a severe head injury.

A spokesman at Salem East Hospital said 19 persons were brought in for treatment. Three were admitted. They were identified as John F. Janis of LaCrosse, Wis., head injury; Harold Brownlee of Pittsburgh, Pa., and his wife, Ada, both with back injuries.

Wind-whipped snow mounted four- to five-foot drifts, hampering rescue workers and emergency vehicles, police said. The Highway Patrol reported many roads in the area closed by snow.

Viewers Like ETV 'Legislative Review'

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

It may never torpedo the ratings of the talk shows or movies which follow the late evening news on most Nebraska television stations, but the nightly "Legislative Review" feature on the state's Educational Television Network has acquired an audience.

What's more, viewers of the half-hour digests of each day's Unicameral floor activity, aired most nights at 10:30 p.m., CST, are making themselves heard.

Mostly the program's fans are saying they like the show, a review of correspondence received by the network discloses.

But letter writers also are commenting on the performers and the performances.

"I just finished listening to the antics of our State Legislature," a Grand Island man wrote. "I must say that I am truly amazed at some of the conversation . . . if more people would only listen to the goings on they might be tempted to vote for some younger people and get the old mossbacks that are running the complete show out on their rump."

That's one point of view.

'Altered My Opinion'

More representative of the responses was a letter of a Holdrege woman, who said the program "has altered my opinion of the quality of the Legislature and given me a heightened respect for the service these people perform."

"I believe I'm as addicted to (the program) as some people are to soap operas," a Lincoln woman confessed.

"It appears that the Unicameral does not provide excitement or drama, but this body of legislators is serious in its intent," wrote an Omaha woman. "The process is slow, but thoughtful."

"It's nice to end the day feeling we are informed of that day's happenings," wrote a woman from Grant.

State senators have become "more than just names or signers of bills," said a Hastings woman. "It is, in fact, a chance to see how some of them think!"

An Ainsworth woman said the program "is becoming a habit with me," and a North Platte man called it "the best program on television."

ETV coverage of the Legislature is not new. The network has been doing it since 1967, but this is the first year that each Legislative day's activity is compacted into a half-hour show. Previously the public affairs production unit filmed two days a week, for purposes of a one-hour program aired Sunday nights.

Ron Hull, network program manager, regards the daily telecasts as "a terrific success."

He says the response indicates that "the people of the state are considerably more sophisticated than many might think."

He believes also the program and the network have become "a cord binding the state together as nothing has before." Western Nebraskans who have tended to feel disenfranchised and who have tuned their antennas, figuratively, to Denver and Cheyenne, have been led to become attuned to Nebraska's seat of government and have become knowledgeable about the Unicameral.

There were some early complaints, even among lawmakers, about "grandstanding" — a tendency of senators to gear floor speeches to the viewing audience. This led to eliminating from the ETV cameras the light that signals the camera is "working."

Hull said there are indications that with the passage of time, senators have tended to forget the cameras. Senators questioned about this have tended to agree.

No Complaints

Strangely, there have been no senatorial complaints that their floor performances have wound up on the cutting room floor, as they say in the movie business, according to Hull.

The daily programs are produced under the direction of Joel Fowler, senior producer for public affairs.

"He has the kind of judgment it takes to present a balanced and fair view of the daily happenings in the State Legislature," says Hull.

Some members of the unit put in 12-hour days, filming the legislative activity, editing the some three hours of tape, writing script, filming introductions and packaging the 30-minute show.

"They work hard at it — and love it," Hull said.

Iceland Volcano Active; Buries 8 More Homes

Reykjavik, Iceland (AP) — Iceland's rumbling Helgafell Volcano spewed up more lava Sunday and engulfed eight houses on Heymaey Island.

The destruction brought to 149 the number of homes wrecked by lava or ash on the outskirts of the evacuated town.

About 400 persons remain on Heymaey for salvage work. The others left when the long-extinct volcano erupted in January. Those remaining have slowed the flow of lava toward the town by pumping water on it to speed up the hardening process.

Bride At An Afternoon Ceremony

On Saturday afternoon, March 17, the wedding of Miss Susan Marie Chesnut, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chesnut of Hastings, and Paul Halpine, Jr., son of Mrs. Paul Halpine of Lincoln, and the late Mr. Halpine, took place at the Blessed Sacrament Church in Lincoln. The Rev. Charles Kotas solemnized the 2 o'clock ceremony.

Mrs. Keith Schmode of Omaha was the bridesmatron, and the two bridesmaids included Miss Mary Cobb and Miss Marcia Cobb, both of Stuart.

Tim Coniglio served Mr. Halpine as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Paul Ludden, Scott Dosek of Omaha, Robert Chesnut, Craig Chesnut and Brian Chesnut, all of Hastings.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk organza and imported Val lace, designed in the Edwardian mode. The lace, which contoured the high, rounded neckline and ornamented the long, tapered sleeves, was repeated in narrow horizontal rows which extended from the neckline to the lace-bordered hem of the floor-length skirt, completed with a chapel train. A Camelot cap of silk organza and seed pears held in place her veil of imported illusion, and she carried a nosegay of white roses and daisies.

Mr. Halpine and his bride will reside at 808 G St., Apt. 3, in Lincoln.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, of which she is a past president, and where she majored in elementary education. She now is a member of the Lincoln public schools faculty. Mr. Halpine is a junior at the University of Nebraska where he is majoring in physical education, and is the assistant golf pro at the Lincoln Country Club.

HOLLYWOOD PREMIERE

No one can promise that Anthony Quinn, Tony Curtis, Liza Minelli or whoever your favorite may be, will be on hand, but we do know that a Hollywood Premiere is scheduled for Lincoln on Saturday evening, April 14.

We hasten to add, however, that this fun affair is a costume ball which the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild has planned.

The party, which begins at 7:30 o'clock in the evening and continues through 1 o'clock the following ayem, will be held at the Lincoln Community Playhouse — There will be dancing, naturally, and a midnight buffet.

The invitation reads "costume ball", but it also says — "costume or black tie."

Sigma Kappa–50 Years On The Campus

Last Saturday is a day that long will be remembered — sometimes with nostalgia since it related to the passing of time.

Saturday was the day that Sigma Kappa sorority paid tribute to its 50 years on the University of Nebraska campus, and alumnae from near and far were here to hold a reunion and to celebrate their chosen sorority's long life on the Nebraska campus.

There were memories, of course — happy ones, and perhaps a sad one or two, but all in all the hail and farewell to 50 years was quite festive.

On Saturday afternoon there was an informal coffee at the chapter house, when familiar faces were recognized and old friends were greeted. On Saturday evening the alumnae, and a surprising number of husbands — plus the members of the collegiate chapter, banqueted at the Ramada Inn.

We'll begin roll call with those from out of state:

In Lincoln for the activities were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown (Jean Lock), of Holyoke, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Hudson (Elaine Putenson); Mr. and Mrs. Lee Phillips (Susie Rutter); Marghretta Ernst, all of Wichita, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pech (Darlene Henschel), Martin, S. Dak.; Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Mahrt (Charlene Benson), Birmingham, Mich.; Miss Carol Jensen, Austin, Tex.; Miss Deanna Sands, Ames, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Schweer (Kathy Sieck), Iowa City, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hadley (Karen Frisk), Huron, S. Dak.; Mr. and Mrs. James Misner (Elaine Hawthorne), Council Bluffs, Iowa; Miss Eileen Porter, Phoenix, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Fischer (Alta Kolsch), Avoca, Iowa.

From here and there in Nebraska came Mrs. Rex Myers (Esther Swanson), Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Stewart (Betty Storjohn), Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lyman (Maryetta Parchen), all of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Schilling (Marianna Ward), Chadron; Mr. and Mrs. A. Weaver (Marguerite Cadwallader), Falls City; Mr. and Mrs. David Lee (Jean Reynolds), Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Andy Kuhn (Karen Kellogg), Mr. and Mrs. Willard Stunkel (Patricia Lee), all of Fremont; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McCubbin (Margaret Marston), Elkhorn; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schultze (Rosemary Bredthauer), Kearney; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schreur (Lona Leonard), Verdigre; Mrs. George Cammack (Willa Waldo), DeWitt; Mrs. Hilmar Krueger (Lou Forney), Hebron; Mrs. Ima Jean (Soucek) Castle, Chadron; Dr. and Mrs. James Simmons (Sandy Herbig), Blair and Mrs. Ralph Knepper (Paula Roehrkasse), Holdrege.

LWMGA Ready to Begin New Season

For all practical purposes the Lincoln Women's Municipal Golf Association will begin its 1973 season a week from next Saturday.

That isn't to say, of course, that the ladies will be out on the golf course — They won't, but they will be doing some wishful thinking — and talking — about those nice, warm days to come.

On Saturday, March 30, the Women's Municipal Golf Association will be having a buffet luncheon at The Knolls, and each and every golferette present will be looking forward to April 10, when the season officially opens at the Holmes Golf Course.

Perish the thought that the season's planning isn't completed because it is — right down to the day and date. The group already has chosen June 12, as their guest day at Holmes, and have another one planned at the Pioneers course on Thursday, Aug. 18. And that is by no means all of the activity — The Women's Municipal Golf Association has Aug. 1st and 2nd in red letters on its calendar — Those are the days of the tournament which will be played at Holmes (the first day) and Pioneers on Aug. 2.

But before August comes another tournament — This one is the Eileen Mills which will be held on July 25 and 26, at Pioneers.

The group stresses the fact that beginners are most welcome, and also that the evening players will once more be able to enjoy their favorite sport.

Anyone wishing to attend the luncheon on March 31, is asked to make reservations with the social chairman, Mrs. Paul Pinceak, 423-4255, or the association president, Mrs. Ervin Wursten, 489-0156.

In addition to Mrs. Wursten and Mrs. Pinceak, the officers and board members include Mrs. Ron Fox, vice-president; Mrs. John Harrod, III, secretary; Mrs. Robert Filbert, treasurer; publicity and LWMGA tournaments, Mrs. C. F. Bottsford, handicap, Mrs. Paul Austin; membership, Mrs. James DeMarrs.

PEO Activities

The election of officers for Chapter GQ PEO was held on Thursday evening, March 8, at the home of Mrs. W. M. Dunn.

The new officers include Mrs. W. E. Whitney, president; Mrs. Harold B. Teague, vice president; Mrs. Lloyd Sharrer, recording secretary; Mrs. Ross Wilcox, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Pat J. Fitchett, treasurer; Mrs. Bill Harris, chaplain; and Mrs. Peter Wirtz, guard.

Mrs. Whitney also was named delegate for the Nebraska PEO convention, and Mrs. Harry S. Cameron was selected alternate delegate.

Mrs. John H. Frey was elected president of Chapter EE PEO at that group's meeting on Monday, March 12.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Donald E. Carter, vice president; Mrs. C. J. Kennedy, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold G. Edwards, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Marvin Nuernberger, treasurer; Mrs. Ward Sybouts, chaplain; and Mrs. Seth S. Scott, guard.

Mrs. Frey also will represent the chapter at the state and national conventions. Mrs. Carter is the alternate delegate for the state convention, while Mrs. E. D. Frank will be the alternate delegate for the national convention.

Mrs. G. D. Kroeger will present the program on Cottey Junior College at the next meeting of Chapter GJ, PEO which will be held at the home of Mrs. Dexter Haws on Monday evening, March 19.

Mrs. H. D. Fager will serve as the assisting hostess for the 7:30 o'clock program meeting.

A white elephant auction will highlight the Monday afternoon, March 19, meeting of PEO Chapter V. The 1 o'clock dessert luncheon and program meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hillman who will be assisted by Mrs. Greeley Price, Mrs. R. D. Stage, Mrs. Ernest Gaither, and Mrs. E. G. Callen.

The members of PEO Chapter BR will meet at the University Club on Monday afternoon, March 19, for a 12:30 o'clock anniversary luncheon.

Dr. Anne Campbell will present the program for the annual event. Dr. Campbell's topic will be "Happiness Is Being A Woman."

Mrs. H. A. Askey is chairman for the anniversary luncheon.

Mrs. Leo Beck, Jr., will entertain the members of Chapter AI, PEO, at a luncheon to be held at her home at 2425 Calvert on Monday afternoon, March 19.

Assisting hostesses for the 12:30 o'clock event will include Mrs. Esther Sears, Mrs. Cecil Frampton, and Mrs. N. B. Nelson.

The guest speaker will be William Evans, chairman of the Art Department at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

AAUW

Thomas Shim, executive director of Lancaster County Child Care Services, was the guest speaker at the Saturday afternoon, March 17, program meeting of the American Association of University Women.

The 2 o'clock event was held at the YWCA, 1432 N St.

Mr. Shim's topic was "Community Problems."

Miss Joan Westfall was in charge of making arrangements for the program meeting.

Courtesy To Joyce Emery

With only a week remaining before her marriage to James Lee Thomas, Miss Joyce Lee Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle C. Emery, took time from her last-minute plans to attend an early morning breakfast in her honor when the guest list included a group of her friends and the distaff members of the bridal party.

Hostesses for the breakfast and personal shower which took place on Saturday morning, March 17, were Miss Kathy Allen, and Mrs. Douglas Hosek.

The wedding of Miss Emery and Mr. Thomas, the son of Russell W. Thomas of Lincoln, and Mrs. John O. Lucas of Copan, Okla., will be an event of Saturday, March 24.

Dinner Plans

The members of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club will meet at the Legionnaire Club for a 6 o'clock dinner meeting on Monday evening, March 19.

Unicameral Club Tour

The Unicameral Club, composed of the wives of Nebraska's state senators, will hold its next meeting in Omaha. The meeting, scheduled for Monday afternoon, March 19, will feature a tour of the Falstaff Brewing Company's facilities.

Hostesses for the event will be Mrs. William Skarda and Mrs. Robert Mahoney, both of Omaha.

March Bride-Elect Honored At Party

When Mrs. Donald Howe and Mrs. Richard Metcalfe entertained at a party at the home of Mrs. Howe on Saturday afternoon, March 17 — which by the way just happened to be St. Patrick's day — the decorations followed a more or less springtime shower theme. And why not? The party was held just a few days prior to the first official day of spring and the shower theme also was perfectly applicable.

It was a bridal shower and luncheon honoring Miss Marsha Tommeraasen, duaghter of Dr. and Mrs. Miles Tommeraasen, who is to be the Saturday, March 24 bride of Robert McDaniel.

Attending the party were 30 guests who during the informal afternoon presented the bride-to-be with a miscellaneous shower.

Credit Women Will Meet

Ronald K. Namuth, director of the Chemical Dependency Unit at Lincoln General Hospital, will be the guest speaker at the Tuesday evening, March 20 meeting of the Credit Women International.

The 6 o'clock dinner to be held at the Elks Club will be followed by Mr. Namuth's address.

ABBY: adding salt

DEAR ABBY: After nearly 10 years of marriage, and two lovely children, my husband and I are getting a divorce.

We never washed our dirty linen in public. In fact, we had a good social life and everyone thought we were a very happy couple.

My problem: Since the news of our divorce has become public many of our friends have called to tell me how "smart" I am to call it quits. They say they have known for years that my husband was fooling around, and then they proceed to fill me in on all the sordid particulars.

What am I supposed to say? I surely can't thank them for pouring salt on my wounds with all these ugly tales. Yet I don't know what else to say.

ACHING HEART

DEAR ACHING: Those who would pour salt on your wounds aren't friends. In the future, when someone starts to fill you in say, "Thanks, but I'm not interested."

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are in our mid-50s. Our two children are married and on their own.

Eight years ago my wife went back to work, but I continued to carry the entire financial load. She banked most of her money in her own name, which was all right with me.

A few years ago I made a will, naming my wife as the sole beneficiary. I told her about it. A few weeks ago I suggested that my wife also draw up a will to avoid complicated legal procedures if, God forbid, she died before me. She acted on my suggestion promptly and informed me that she arranged for everything to be divided equally among me and the two children.

I felt hurt. Not because of the few miserable dollars involved, but because she knew she was my sole beneficiary, and she didn't choose to make ME hers. After all, what did our children ever do for us? Nothing!

I will refrain from further comment because I feel I am badly in need of yours. Thanks.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: My guess is that your wife reasoned that if you were to survive her, you'd probably marry again. And should Wife No. 2 survive you, she'd wind up with all your worldly goods, leaving nothing to your children. Since women usually survive their husbands, I am surprised you didn't apply the same reasoning.

MISS HELEN KRONDAK

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Max J. Krondak of David City of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Helen, to Richard Jobman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilke Jobman of Adams.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, June 9.

Miss Krondak is careering in the business office of the Lincoln Electric System.

Mr. Jobman is associated with an electrical company in Adams.

WIC Party Adds To Education Fund

There is more than one way to accomplish a good purpose and the members of Women In Construction made their choice and a most successful choice it was.

The WIC wanted to add to its aid to education fund which is used to aid University of Nebraska students who are specializing in any phase of construction — architecture, engineering, draftmanship and many more vital construction specialties.

So the Women In Construction put their heads together and came up with an ingenious idea — A St. Patrick's party.

So St. Patrick was very much in evidence at the hors d'oeuvres affair which the members of WIC had on Friday evening, March 16 at the Villager. The festivity was attended by 250 guests and a portion of the entertainment had to do with the campaign for funds.

YWCA Dance On Saturday

The annual YWCA Sno-Flake Dance took place on Saturday evening, March 17, and the semi-formal party at 8:30 o'clock.

"We Can Make It Together" was the theme of annual festivity. The music was provided by the combo known as "Everybody's Everything."

All junior and senior high school students were welcome to attend the dance which was held at the YWCA, 1432 N St.

Opening lead - three of hearts.

The Italian Blue team has won 14 of the last 15 world championships in which it played, but it was not ever thus.

Back in 1951, an American team composed of George Rapee, Sam Stayman, Howard Schenken, John Crawford and this writer journeyed to Naples and easily defeated the Italian team that had won the European championship that year.

The personnel of the Italian team has changed considerably since that time — only Pietro Forquet of the 1951 team has survived the change and, now in his forties, continues to annex one world championship after another.

But in 1951, when Italy participated in its first big international event, their team displayed signs of instability. Today's hand, which produced a 1,500 point gain for the Americans, occurred early in the match.

The irrepressible Crawford, sitting East, opened the bidding with a heart! South passed, for reasons unknown, and I — holding the West cards and not realizing that my dreadful hand was even better than Crawford's — also passed.

The Italian North bid two hearts, presumably showing a good hand, and South responded three notrump. Declarer made 13 tricks without breathing hard and the Italian pair scored 720 points on the deal.

Of course, North-South realized they had suffered a huge loss by failing to undertake a laydown grand slam, and that their bidding methods were not geared to dealing with phony bids.

The American pair at the other table got to the grand slam in bang-bang style. The bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	2 NT	Pass	7 NT

North knew that South had at least 18 points for his jump rebid of two notrump and that making all 13 tricks was therefore a virtual certainty.

"After 10 years of psoriasis, a concentrated lotion helped my red, scaly skin in only 3 weeks."

Mrs. Grace Hoffman of Allentown, Pa. (quoted above) had severe psoriasis for 10 years. She said, "Nothing really helped me until Oxipor. My bottle of Oxipor VHC is the best investment I ever made in my life."

Oxipor VHC really helps! Doctors saw 7 out of 10 psoriasis patients improve remarkably with Oxipor. In fact, it proved twice as effective as the leading psoriasis product in reducing the area of scales, crusts, and red patchy skin. Generally, results may be obvious in just a few days.

Maybe you can be as happy as Mrs. Hoffman using a modern concentrate for your psoriasis. Isn't Oxipor VHC lotion worth a try?

Holiday Inn Unfair

Protests have been received that Holiday Inns Cowboy Steak Night is unfair competition. Complaints have been lodged that the giant T-bone steak they are serving is entirely too large, to tender, and much too delicious, considering the low, low price of only $4.95. Also cited as being unfair were the warm, fresh baked loaves of sourdough bread from their secret sourdough starter. Investigators who have been out to Cowboy Steak Night have reportedly been "hooked" on the genuine, made from "scratch" Cowboy Beans. Poll: Public Approves Of Suspension Of Federal Housing Subsidies

By LOUIS HARRIS

The suspension of federal subsidies for publicly assisted housing announced by the Nixon administration meets with public approval 48% to 35%. Although the American people recognize a need for federal help to house low income, minority, and elderly families, there is a feeling that subsidized housing has become prohibitively expensive and generally has not been well planned, constructed, or managed.

The mandate to emerge from this Harris Survey on publicly assisted housing is that it is still desirable for the federal government to render assistance to lower income people who need housing, but that the federal housing program as it has developed to date ought to be overhauled extensively.

Recently, a nationwide cross section of 1,513 households was asked:

"The Nixon administration has decided to stop all new support for subsidized federal housing projects for the next 18 months. The administration says the reasons are that these federal housing projects have made builders rich but have not worked out well for the tenants or for the country. Others in Congress say the poor will not get proper housing unless the government helps pay the cost of building such projects. Do you favor or oppose the suspension for 18 months of new federal support for public housing?"

SUSPENSION OF FUNDS FOR HOUSING

	Total Public
Favor	48%
Oppose	35%
Not sure	17%

Some of the support for the administration stop order stems from a widespread feeling that subsidized public housing has not worked out as well as people hoped when it was originated:

— By 74-15%, a sizable majority agrees with the statement that "public housing has been a failure because the projects become run-down quickly and are badly managed."

— By 47-30%, a plurality accepts the view that "mammoth public housing projects have been bad for the people living in them and for the cities where they have been built."

Building Costs

But part of the opposition to spending new monies on housing for low and moderate income families these days comes from a more generalized feeling that these times of inflation are not the best period in which to put taxpayers' funds into new construction. By 65-22%, a sizable majority goes along with the contention that "the cost of building public housing has gone up so much that the tax load on the rest of the public to pay for it has become unbearable."

Traditional critics of publicly assisted housing have argued that disadvantaged families should not have new building available to them, but instead should depend on a "trickle down" theory. That theory says, in effect, "housing should be built by private home builders for those with middle and high incomes, and low and moderate income people can thereupon move into the housing vacated by such families."

Louis Harris

Planning Criticized

When this proposition was put directly to the cross section, by a narrow 40-37%, the public endorsed such a "trickle down" approach to the housing shortage.

Reluctance Seen

Part of the reason many are reluctant, however, to turn over the housing needs of lower income people completely completely to the private sector can be seen in these views largely supporting the principle of federal help for such housing:

— By 70-23%, a big majority agrees with the claim that "lower income people will not have adequate housing unless the federal government pays some of the cost of building the projects."

— By 51-41%, a majority also agrees that "by ending low income housing projects, poor people are doomed to live in slums."

— By 52-36%, a majority also holds the view that "the only way people with low incomes can get modern apartments is for the government to pay part of their rent."

— And a narrow 45-44% agrees with the statement that "to shut off new public housing is to doom low income people, racial minorities, and older people to a life of misery."

These results make it clear that the 48-35% who agree with the administration's decision to stop all new funding of publicly assisted housing for the next 18 months are not motivated by any hard-and-fast principle that lower income families should not be helped with government funding so much as by a conviction that the way the government has gone about it has simply not been right.

Basically, the American people seem to be saying that they would like to see some help forthcoming from the federal government for housing for the disadvantaged, but that it ought to be better planned and constructed and operated once built. If new approaches can be found to correct these past faults, then there is every reason to believe the American people would favor a federal housing program for lower income families.

Ask the Old Farmer: How do you "set" a sundial in a garden? I have heard it should be done on June 21st. If so, how do I proceed? A.G., Jackson, Miss.

Take our advice and don't do any figuring at all about this thing. If you want a sundial in your garden, plant her and let it go at that. We had one once. We were told to set her on June 21, just before midnight. Set her with twelve o'clock, pointing due west by compass. We did it all. And do you know the thing lost two hours in less than a day.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

A blue day in blue Hawaii. Offshore the white sugar surf piles up on black lava edging the sea. A brisk trade wind streams out the coco palms. The mynah birds strut up the sandy road on long orange legs — chatter, chatter. ("Howzit, brudda? You no come Hawaii long time.")

The rich are on the beach. The poor — well, we sit and type and try to make a devalued dollar. Auwe!

We are at elegant Kona Village Resort. The blue bay at Kaupulehu. The warm Kona coast on the Big Island.

When Kona Village was first built, it was so isolated you could only get in by light plane. Now you can drive in — it's a sandy road. But most people fly in on a Royal Hawaiian Cessna from the airport at Kailua town. It's $6. Cheaper than a taxi.

Barefoot and in shorts. A coconut hat on my head. A frosty mai-tai in hand. (I was out of my pineapple pickin' mind to bring this typewriter.)

At 9:45 in the cloudy San Francisco morning, I got on Western Air's rocket and, five hours (two martinis, the big lunch and one movie) later, Diamond Head was under the wing.

Honolulu airport was warm as money from home. After rainy California, it was the first time I'd been dried out in two months.

I caught the Aloha jet for the Big Island. By three o'clock I'd thrown my shoes in the corner of the little grass shack. Hung my tie on a door knob for the duration.

Is all well in Paradise? Well, yes and no. Between planes I went up to Waikiki and had a mai-tai at the lovely old Royal Hawaiian, almost lost now among the high rise.

"We're getting awfully bad press on the mainland about overselling rooms," said the public relations man. "But what do you do with a guest paying $50 for a room who decides to stay on three days more?

"He wants to stay. Down in the lobby we've got the arriving guest who's supposed to get the room."

For the last few weeks, planes have been coming in packing tours with guaranteed rooms only to find there were no rooms. Not in the guaranteed hotels anyway.

A couple of planes turned around and went back, carrying the same people. All mad enough to chew down a coconut tree.

Kona Village is built in the black lava flow that came down in 1801. It put the village of Kaupulehu — 10,000 people — out of business. Nothing much happened here until a few years ago, a man named Johnno Jackson came along and built the resort.

Hacked out an airstrip on the rough lava. Flew in workmen. Built the village of grass shacks you find through the South Pacific. The geometrically painted Maori houses. The conical fales of Samoa. The Fiji grass bures.

A little grass shack here for two goes at $55 a day with meals.

At sunset we make the big effort. Put on sandals and sit at the beach bar — it's built into a wrecked schooner that came ashore here. A Tahitian woman named Dolly makes a powerful mai-tai.

You can take it through a straw. Why lift a glass?

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

Weather Important

In analyzing Big Eight baseball since he began coaching at Nebraska 26 seasons ago, Tony Sharpe has reached several conclusions.

"The weather is really probably the most important factor outside of local talent in determining a team's success," the veteran coach said. "It just stands to reason that if two teams have equal players and one team gets to practice outside say six weeks longer, then that team will usually win more games."

The Big Eight geographically can be divided into three regions. Nebraska, Iowa State and Colorado can roughly be placed in one region, Kansas and Kansas State in another region and the southern group includes Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Missouri.

Sharpe did a little homework and the following table represents the final conference standings and how many times each team finished in a particular spot during his 26 years in Lincoln:

	NU	ISU	KSU	CU	KU	MU	OU	OSU
1st	2	3	0	0	1	7	6	7
2nd	5	1	1	2	1	7	7	2
3rd	4	4	2	1	5	3	6	1
4th	2	5	4	7	5	3	1	1
5th	2	7	3	6	1	2	2	1
6th	5	1	4	4	6	3	2	1
7th	5	3	7	5	3	0	1	1
8th	1	2	5	0	4	1	1	1

As the table indicates, Missouri, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State have dominated the Big Eight baseball standings winning 20 of a possible 26 championships.

"Oklahoma and Missouri are two of the hotbeds of baseball in the midwest," Sharpe said. "Sure, California produces more players for the major leagues than any other state, but Oklahoma and Missouri have a lot of kids drafted, too."

Home Products

Consequently, when Missouri, OU and OSU seek baseball players they can generally find talented players in their homestates. On last year's Missouri squad, 23 of the 32 players were from Missouri. Oklahoma natives comprised 24 of the 30 berths at OU and Oklahoma State's 23 players included 11 from Soonerland, 3 from California and 4 from Texas.

"And remember Tulsa (which has become nationally-known for its baseball program) gets a lot of its players from right here in Tulsa," Sharpe said. "And there's still a lot of talent left over for Oklahoma and Oklahoma State to deal with.

"The St. Louis area is another of the hotbeds for kids baseball, which makes it easy for Missouri and Southern Illinois (a 1971 College World Series participant) to get players," he added.

Although the Huskers have won just two Big Eight titles (in 1948 and 1950) during Sharpe's regime, he noted that that was a creditable performance.

"That speaks pretty good for us seeing that not all the high schools in the state have a baseball program and we're always behind other teams because of our longer winters," he said.

The Huskers open their season with a Tuesday doubleheader at Shreveport, La. against Centenary. In comparison, Oklahoma, regarded as an odds-on favorite to repeat as Big Eight champion, is scheduled to play 17 games before the Huskers ever take the field for a game.

"Indoor practice can do a lot of things, but there's no substitute for practicing outside and playing games," Sharpe noted.

Pirates' Oliver Seeks To Fill Clemente's Shoes

Bradenton, Fla. (AP) — Al Oliver wants a chance to prove he can fill the shoes of Roberto Clemente as leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Oliver makes it clear that he's not being brash or disrespectful of the late Pittsburgh outfielder. He simply believes he and Clemente are made of a similar mold.

"Most people feel that I can fill that type of role," says Oliver, a .312 hitter for last year's National League East Division champions. "All the players respect me. We get along. They know when I say something I mean it."

Oliver believes his ability lies in setting a personal example.

"They all know I can play," he said at the Pirates' training camp. "Like Clemente, I'm not a drinker, not a smoker. I'm dedicated."

The 26-year-old Oliver, a native of Portsmouth, Ohio, says the players admire his confidence, love to hear him talk on the bench.

"Take (Gene) Clines," Oliver said, speaking of the Pirates' young outfielder. "He goes up and strikes out. When he comes back, I say, 'Gene, hold your head high. When you can hit, you can hit.' This usually psyches up a guy."

Oliver feels he'd make a good heir to Clemente's leadership role because of his rough childhood. He lost both of his parents at a comparatively early age. He also looks upon himself as a humanitarian and thinks his persistent fight to prove his baseball talent gives him an understanding of player feelings and problems.

Oliver said he has been hardened by such things as hate mail when some people thought the black outfielder's lightskinned wife was a white girl.

"When I look back at that," he said, "it was the best thing that ever happened to me. It matured me a lot quicker."

Oliver feels the Pirates have potentially the best team in the National League. "If each can do what he's capable of, we should be right in the thick of things," Oliver said. "If we don't do it, that potential goes right down the drain. We know we have a job to do without Clemente. If we fall flat on our faces, he wouldn't like that.

Oliver says only the death of his mother affected him more than Clemente's death which, he says, left him speechless, his legs weak, his eyes welling with tears.

"He was my biggest booster, always in my corner," Oliver said of Clemente. "Even when I was being platooned and he didn't think I should be, he urged me to keep going. He would say my day would come.

"Most of the people who knew the two of us saw us basically as the same personalities. Like Clemente, I don't smile that much and people had a tendency to take us the wrong way. Baseball writers were afraid to approach us until they found out we didn't bite."

Oliver has a lasting memory of his friend, a hairstyling set. Oliver's wife gave Al a surprise birthday party last Oct. 14. Most of the players attended, including Clemente, who gave Oliver the hairstyling set.

"I remember saying, 'let's take a picture. It may be the last time we'll be together.' I was thinking of trades, not . . ." Oliver swallowed the obvious word. His birthday celebration was Clemente's last day in Pittsburgh. He died New Year's Eve when an airplane carrying relief supplies to earthquake victims in Nicaragua went down off the shore of his native Puerto Rico.

COLBERT TRIUMPHS

Kansan Wins With 279

. . . $26,000 PAYCHECK

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Kansan Jimmy Colbert, surviving a nightmare of six bogeys, fired a one-over-par 73 Sunday to score a one-stroke victory in the $130,000 Jacksonville Open.

Colbert, taking his third victory in seven years on the tour, collected $26,000 in prize money for his nine-under par total of 279.

There was a four-way tie for second place among Nashville's Lou Graham, burly Jim Wiechers of Napa, Calif., Dan Sikes of Jacksonville and young Johnny Miller of San Francisco, who missed a 12-foot putt on the 18th hole which would have tied him for the lead.

Colbert began horrendously, bogeying four of his first five holes, missing one two-foot putt and another from four feet. But the spunky Kansas State graduate fought back to birdie the fifth and sixth holes and then the 10th hole. On the 11th, he chipped in from the fringe to regain the lead which he had relinquished at the halfway mark to the hulking, 215-pound Wiechers.

Colbert and Wiechers changed the lead three times during their round together. Miller, who could have tied for it all had his 18th hole putt been just a few inches longer, was the third member of the threesome that attracted nearly the entire 28,000 gallery on the 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club course.

Don Massengale of White Plains, N. Y. was alone in sixth place with a six-under-par total of 282 for the tournament.

Jack Nicklaus had a 71 Sunday which put him far back in the field with an even par total of 288. It was his worst finish of the year.

Defending champion Tony Jacklin closed with a disastrous 77 for a three-over par total of 291.

Colbert, who went into the final round with a two-stroke lead, looked as if he would blow sky high by three-putting the first hole from 23 feet. He faded his tee shot on No. 2 into the trap and then hit into the rough for another bogey on two.

He wasn't even close to sinking a four-foot putt for a par on the third though he did manage to can a four-footer for his par on the par five, fourth hole.

On the fifth, he drove into a bunker and then hit out into another bunker and got his fourth bogey. Wiechers, meanwhile, who finished with a 72 Sunday, had birdied the second and third holes to take the lead.

But Colbert would not be denied. The 5-9, 165-pound former all-Kansas high school football player snaked in a 17-footer for a birdie on six and an eight-footer for another birdie on seven which moved him back into contention.

After going to even par with his birdie on 11, Colbert three-putted from 85 feet for his fifth bogey on the 13th and then got another bogey on the 15th when he drove into the woods. Wiechers re-took the lead with a birdie on the 13th but blew it all on the 16th when he hit his third shot into a bunker on the 509-yard hole and took a six.

For the 32-year-old Colbert, who won the Monsanto Open in 1969 and the Milwaukee Open in 1972, the victory ended a dry spell so far this year. His previous earnings were only $4,243.

There was a three-way tie for seventh place among Bruce Crampton, Homero Blancas, Forrest Fezler and Steve Melnyk, all with five-under par totals of 283.

Miller credited Colbert for "a really gutsy putt" on the 17th, where he canned a seven-footer to save a par.

"He deserves all of the credit because he made a couple of great shots," Miller told the large gallery at the presentation ceremonies.

Colbert explained the high scores to the crowd: "The big strong wind just tired us out yesterday. It upsets our timing and rhythm."

Colbert added he thought he was beaten but he pulled it out.

Massengale, only a sometime participant on the tour, shot the day's best round, a four-under-par 68.

Kings Host Portland

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings will conclude their 15-game home stand here this season Monday night at Civic Auditorium by hosting the Portland Trail Blazers.

Tipoff is scheduled for 7:35 in the sixth game this season between the two teams. The Kings have won three to the Trail Blazers' two.

Last season the Trail Blazers and Kings split their series, with each winning two games.

With only three games remaining for the Kings after playing the Trail Blazers, Nate Archibald is nearing several NBA records.

By leading the league in scoring and assists, Archibald would become the first player in NBA history to accomplish that feat. He also will set a scoring record for a guard.

Going into the Trail Blazers' game, Archibald is averaging 34.0 points and 11.4 assists a game. The former Texas-El Paso standout also paces the league in minutes played, 3,420.

The Detroit Pistons have already picked Archibald as player of the year and put him on their all-opponent team.

The Kings' general manager, Joe Axelson, is publicly saying his all-league guard should be the NBA's most valuable player. Axelson says he may be sorry he said Archibald should be the most valuable player at contract time, but adds he thinks it's worth it.

A sellout or near sellout crowd is expected to watch Archibald show why he is one of the NBA's top players.

The Trail Blazers are led by former UCLA standout Sidney Wicks and former Princeton standout Geoff Petrie. Both are averaging 23.9 points a game, which is the ninth best in the league.

Wicks was the rookie of the year last season, while Petrie tied the Boston Celtics' Dave Cowans for the same honor two years ago.

However, most of the attention will be on Archibald who has already broken two club records and is threatening to better four more in addition to the NBA marks he'll break.

Archibald topped the old field goals made record of 870 by Jack Twyman set in 1959-60 with 955 last week. The 6-1 guard also has snapped Oscar Robertson's 2,480 total points in a season set in 1963-64 with 2,517, which he had last week.

The club records Archibald threatens to break are minutes played (3,619 set by Jerry Lucas in 1967-68), field goal attempts (2,063 set by Jack Twyman in 1959-60), assists (845 set by Robertson in 1961-62, which is a NBA record) and scoring (averaging 31.4 by Robertson set in 1963-64).

Fairfield, Gobblers Score NIT Triumphs

NEW YORK (AP) — Fairfield staged an incredible comeback behind George Groom's 19 second-half points and upset Marshall University 80-76 Sunday in the first round of the National Invitation basketball tournament.

The triumph moved the Stags into Thursday night's quarterfinals against Virginia Tech, which earlier defeated New Mexico 65-63 behind Allen Bristow's 26 points.

The first round concludes Monday night with Rutgers meeting Minnesota and Manhattan facing Alabama at Madison Square Garden.

The Stags, trailing at one stage in the first half by 15 points, charged back behind their sharpshooting guard. Trailing 43-38 at the half, Fairfield ran off a 20-8 spurt to move into a 56-51 lead. That was their first lead, their largest of the game, since the opening minutes.

Marshall threatened to run away from the underdog Stags at the start with a run-and-gun offense that mounted a 27-12 lead with 10 minutes gone in the game.

But the Thundering Herd from West Virginia lost all of the advantage, buckling under a Fairfield charge led by Phil Rogers. Then Marshall's Mike D'Antoni took control of the game with some steals and key points to move the Herd into its five-point halftime lead before Groom went on his second-half tear.

Groom wound up with 23 points for Fairfield, which is now 18-8. Randy Nolt scored 20 to lead Marshall, 20-7.

Cosell Ready To Testify At NCAA-AAU Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television sportscaster Howard Cosell is scheduled to testify Monday when a special House education subcommittee begins hearings on legislation aimed at ending the controversy between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union.

The subcommittee actually will be considering two bills—one that would provide criminal penalties for denying eligibility to a student-athlete who participates in amateur international competition as a member of a United States sports team, and a bill to create a federal sports commission.

Reps. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., and John Dellenback, R-Ore., introduced legislation which would provide for fines up to $10,000 for denial of eligibility. Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., sponsored the bill that would establish a five-man commission within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to guarantee the cooperation of amateur athletic organizations involved in international competition.

In a joint statement, O'Hara and Dellenback said their bill was designed to "bring to an end an intolerable situation: student-athletes are being used as pawns, their collegiate athletic activities are being threatened, and their scholarships and, therefore, their educations are being jeopardized."

The feud between the two groups, the statement said, has "cast doubt over the ability of the U.S. to put a top-ranked super-star basketball team on the courts during a tour of this country by the Soviet Olympic team in April and May."

The NCAA refused to allow players or coaches of its member schools to participate in the AAU-sponsored event.

The rivalry also forced changes in the U.S. track team that competed against the Russians Friday night in Richmond, Va.

Jim Banner, track coach at the University of Pittsburgh, who stepped out of the U.S.-Russian meet because of the feud, also is scheduled to testify, as are Jack Langer, a graduate student at Harvard; Carl W. Cooper, executive director, U.S. Track and Field Federation, and three AAU officials: Ollan Cassell, executive director; David Rivenes, president, and Richard W. McArthur, publicity director.

"There remains no way of resolving this problem other than through legislative action which will put reasonable limits on these two organizations," O'Hara and Dellenback said.

Peyser said his legislation "is designed to make it easier for the American amateur athlete to compete internationally by creating a body which will be responsive to his needs and will totally support and encourage his efforts."

The five-man commission would be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Shorter Earns Win In Marathon Race

Otsu City, Japan (AP) — Frank Shorter, the 26-year-old Olympic gold medalist from the United States, easily won the 28th Mainichi marathon in 2 hours, 12 minutes, 3 seconds Sunday.

After finishing more than one minute ahead of his nearest competitor in the 26-mile, 385-yard grind, Shorter said, "I feel very good, but my legs are tired. I don't know why. Maybe I ran too hard in the beginning."

Cousy Coach For Series With Russia?

Kansas City (AP) — The Kansas City Star said Saturday night it had learned from a reliable source in New York that Bob Cousy will be named Monday to coach the United States basketball team during a six-game series with a Russian team.

Cousy and James J. Fox, basketball administrator of the Amateur Athletic Union, would not deny or confirm the report.

At his home in Indianapolis, Fox said Cousy, coach of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, "is being considered. We have a meeting Wednesday and our final decision will be made then." But Fox conceded the announcement might be made earlier.

Cousy, whose team plays the Celtics in Boston Sunday, told the Star by telephone from his home in Worcester, Mass., "I'm having conversations with them, but nothing is definite."

The series with Russia is scheduled from April 29-May 9 in Los Angeles, San Diego, Indianapolis, New York, Baltimore and Lexington, Ky.

Volleyball Teams Eye World Record

Seward Mixed volleyball teams including 24 students will attempt to break the world record for most consecutive hours played at the Concordia Teachers College beginning Thursday.

The Bethesda Lutheran Home at Watertown, Wis., and the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association have been named as beneficiaries. The current record is 125 hours.

Boston Clinches Division Crown

BOSTON (UPI) — The scene in the Boston Celtics dressing room resembled a wake rather than a victory celebration. Maybe they were all thinking about last year.

The Celtics clinched their second straight Atlantic Division championship in the National Basketball Association Sunday afternoon, stopping the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, 109-105, before a Boston Garden crowd of 14,481 and a national television audience.

But there were no celebrations. Paul Silas, who poured in 24 points and grabbed 21 rebounds, spoke quietly into a telephone. John Havlicek, the team leader with 28 points, leaned back against his locker. Jo Jo White, 26 points, spoke in hushed tones.

The Celtics' win eliminated the New York Knicks from contention in regular season play. The Knicks finished second last year, too, but knocked off the Celtics in the second round of the playoffs.

"We know it's just the start of things," Celtics' Coach Tom Heinsohn said. "It's nice to win the title and all that jazz, but we got a couple of things to get out of the way, and then we go into the playoffs."

For one thing, the Celtics now need two more wins to be sure of beating out the Los Angeles Lakers for the best overall record in the NBA—that means about $5,000 more per player.

"There are three steps to this," Heinsohn said. "Step one is to win the division, which we've done. Step two is to beat out Los Angeles for the best record. Step three is to win the NBA championship. We've only started."

Dave Cowens helped the Celtics wrap up the division title, drilling a 10-foot jumper with 1:09 left in the game that ignited a six-point Boston outburst.

Cardinals Spoil Debut Of Chicago's Bahnsen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals scored six runs in the sixth inning to spoil the spring debut of Stan Bahnsen, then held on for a 9-8 victory over the Chicago White Sox Sunday.

Bernie Carbo's two-run homer triggered the seven-hit explosion against Bahnsen, who pitched only two innings. Joe Morgan, Dan Driessen and Dave Concepcion each had three hits and drove in two runs to pace the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Dick Woodson, Bill Hands and Jim Strickland combined for a two-hitter and the Minnesota Twins, erupting for six runs in the sixth inning, clobbered the Boston Red Sox 9-1. George Mitterwald had a two-run single in the outburst.

Pittsburgh collected nine hits off three Baltimore pitchers and defeated the Orioles 7-4. The Pirates' attack featured two hits apiece by Gene Clines, Bob Robertson, Rich Hebner, and Jackie Hernandez.

Ron Swoboda, Rick Dempsey and Hal Lanier each drove in two runs as the New York Yankees erased a six-run deficit in the sixth inning and added four more in the seventh for a 10-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Ed Sprague and Mel Behney combined for a five-hit shutout as the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0. The Reds scored twice off losing pitcher Larry Christenson in the third as Jim Driscoll, who doubled to right, and George Foster, who was hit by a pitch, scored on Bobby Tolan's double down the left field line.

Don Sutton and Eddie Solomon also combined for a five-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston 6-0. Lee Lacy led a 10-hit Los Angeles attack with three singles and a double and Willie Crawford drove in three runs.

The Texas Rangers scored three runs on Alex Johnson's homer and a triple by Mike Epstein to defeat the Atlanta Braves 5-1.

Keith Marshall singled home Amos Otis from second base in the bottom of the 10th inning to give Kansas City a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos. Otis, who also singled three times, started the Royals on their way in the 10th with a double.

A bases-loaded double by Rich McKinney in the seventh inning gave the Oakland A's a 7-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians' B squad.

Jack Brohamer tripled, singled three times and drove in two runs leading a 16-hit attack that gave the Indians' "A" team an 11-7 victory over the California Angels.

A two-run single by Bohamer and a two-run triple by Frank Duffy highlighted a six-run Indian explosion in the seventh inning that snapped a 3-3 deadlock. Charlie Spikes belted his fourth homer of the spring for Cleveland and also singled.

Nate Colbert drove in four runs, three of them with his first home run of the spring, as the San Diego Padres beat Milwaukee 7-1. Jerry Morales hit two singles and drove in two runs in support of the five-hit pitching of San Diego's Fred Norman and Bill Greif.

First baseman Ed Goodson drilled a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth to lift the San Francisco Giants to an 8-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs. With the Giants trailing 7-6, Chris Arnold singled to open the inning, then rookie outfielder Gary Matthews tripled in the tying run.

After the Cubs intentionally loaded the bases, Goodson singled for the second time in the game.

Duran-Gonzalez Fight Set For Los Angeles?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World lightweight boxing champions Rodolfo Gonzalez and Roberto Duran won handily on the same card and now, of course, there's talk the two soon will meet, possibly in Los Angeles Coliseum for $100,000 each.

Gonzalez, the 27-year-old World Boxing Council champion, stopped Ruben Navarro of East Los Angeles after 2:33 of the ninth round in their scheduled 15-rounder while Duran, recognized by the World Boxing Association, took a 10-round decision over Javier Ayala at the Sports Arena Saturday night.

Referee George Latka stopped the title bout with Navarro, 133½, bleeding from a cut under his right eye and taking punches with no return. Gonzalez, 135, led by a solid margin on all cards.

Duran, 136, failed to make Ayala, 138, of Mexico, see stars but the Panamanian handed his foe such a solid thrashing that the timekeeper saw red.

Ayala, bleeding from the nose, went down so hard in the 10th that when his head hit the canvas the red 10-second lights lit up, confusing timekeeper Jack Smith.

As a result, Smith rang the bell ending the round with 1:21 remaining. The fighters took their gloves off but had to don them again to finish the bout.

In the other 10-round fights on the card, Jimmy Heair of Glendale, Calif., outpointed former WBC champ Chango Carmona of Mexico, and Danny "Little Red" Lopez of Los Angeles survived a first-round beating and came back to stop Kanji Endo of Japan in the second.

Lopez was down from a right-hand shot in the first round and took a battering before landing a right that knocked Endo off his feet just before the bell. Lopez, 122, then knocked the 123pound Japanese slugger to the canvas twice in the second before Referee Richard Steele stopped the bout.

Lopez has won all 17 of his starts, all by knockouts.

Asked about fighting Duran, Gonzalez said, "I'll fight anybody my manager, Jackie McCoy, signs. I'd have to fight Duran differently than I did against Navarro. Duran is a good puncher."

Matchmaker Don Chargin of the Olympic Boxing Club which promoted the Saturday card, said, "We're going to talk over the weekend for a possible Gonzalez-Duran fight to clear up the confused title picture."

He didn't mention money but it previously was reported an outdoor fight at the Coliseum might bring a $100,000 purse for each of the champions.

Indiana Task: Derail UCLA

By The Associated Press

It's two down, two to go for UCLA's defending champions as they pursue a seventh consecutive National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship.

Indiana gets the next shot at the top-ranked Bruins in the NCAA semifinals Saturday in St. Louis. The other semifinal match sends Providence against Memphis State.

All four were quarter-final winners Saturday. UCLA won the Western title 54-39 over San Francisco. Indiana took the Mideast crown 72-65 over Kentucky. Providence whipped Maryland 103-89 for the Eastern championship and Memphis State took the Midwest title, defeating Kansas State 92-72.

Meanwhile, the National Invitation Tournament got underway in New York with Notre Dame, Louisville, Massachusetts and North Carolina moving into the quarter-finals with first round victories.

Notre Dame, celebrating St. Patrick's Day by wearing green sneakers, nipped Southern California 69-65. Louisville defeated American University 97-84. Massachusetts topped Missouri 78-71 and North Carolina swamped Oral Roberts 82-65.

UCLA got a big boost from its bench to overcome a sevenpoint San Francisco lead and defeated the stubborn Dons. Reserves Tommy Curtis and Dave Meyers sparked the Bruins' 73rd straight victory and 34th in a row in tournament action. But don't look for the subs to start against Indiana.

"I plan to start my regular lineup," said Coach John Wooden. "I don't base my starting lineup on a momentary performance in a single game but rather on a year-long progression of practices and games."

Curtis scored 12 points on outside shots that ignited UCLA to its victory. Afterwards, losing Coach Bob Gaillard of San Francisco had some advice for Indiana.

"It's suicide to run with the Bruins," said Gaillard. "I believe to beat UCLA you must have a low-scoring game with the winner in the 50s. If you come in with the idea of scoring 60 or more, they will beat you."

Larry Finch poured in 32 points as Memphis State qualified for its first trip to the semifinals by eliminating Kansas State.

"We can't play much better than we did today," said Memphis State Coach Gene Bartow. "We got a super effort from some super players. For instance, I don't think there's a better guard in the country than Larry Finch. He's played 75 super games over a three-year period."

Providence got 30 points from Ernie DiGregorio and 24 from Kevin Stacom to wipe out Maryland. DiGregorio hit on 14 of 21 shots from the field and had five assists before fouling out as the Friars won their 17th consecutive game. Their last loss was to UCLA.

Blakenship Takes Lead

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP) — Steve Blankenship of Omaha, who carries an average of 183, rolled a 279 game in singles and took over first place in that division of the Nebraska Men's Bowling Tournament at Hastings Sunday.

Blankenship, with a 703 scratch, added 30 handicap pins for a singles total of 733. His 1,847 was good for second place in all events at the end of the third weekend of bowling in the tournament, which will run three more weeks.

Blankenship bowled in the final squad Sunday night.

Ali Eyes Bout With Foreman

NEW YORK (AP) — A $10 million fight—largest in boxing history—between world heavyweight champion George Foreman and former champ Muhammad Ali is in the negotiating stage, according to Bob Arum, Ali's attorney.

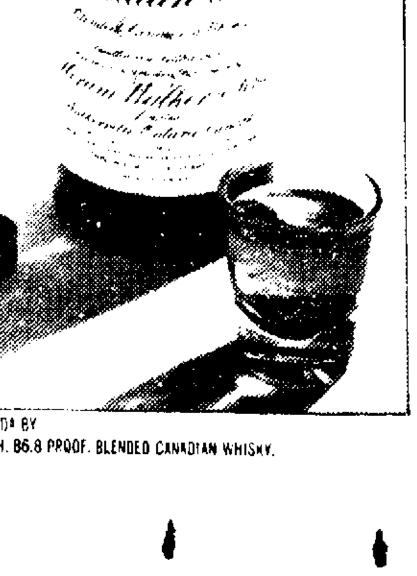

Arum, in an interview on the nationally televised "Howard Cosell's Sports Magazine" program Sunday, said he anticipates the deal for the bout will be completed in the near future. The fight could be staged in September, Arum added.

The lawyer said Houston would be a logical site for the match, since that city is Foreman's home town and Ali likes to fight there. "The only site I would object to is New York, where the tax problem is insoluble."

The fighters would split the purse which is, according to Arum, being offered by legitimate promoters.

Timeless Moment Rival To Laurin's Secretariat

NEW YORK (AP) — Trainer Lucien Laurin is riding that exciting band wagon known as Secretariat, the 1972 Horse of the Year, toward the Kentucky Derby.

Could Laurin's rival, Elliott Burch, be quietly headed in the same direction with Timeless Moment, who has yet to run in a stakes?

The question popped up Saturday at Aqueduct after Timeless Moment, at the moment just another Derby nominee, won the sixth race for his second victory in two starts this year and Secretariat, favored to win the Derby, made his 1973 debut by beating five other 3year-olds and a foul claim to win the Bay Shore Stakes.

If Timeless Moment should develop, it could mean many exciting moments for racing. Last year Laurin won the Derby and Belmont with Riva Ridge, but then along came Burch and Key To The Mint to win the 3-year-old championship.

"Basically, the race answers all our questions," said Helen Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, after the Bay Shore.

"Yes, I was pleased with his race," said Laurin. "We're planning, if all goes well, for the Gotham (April 7 at Aqueduct) next."

And then it probably will be the April 21 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct and on to Kentucky for Secretariat.

"He's just like he was, good," said jockey Ron Turcotte.

Secretariat burst from a four-horse pack with about an eighth of a mile to go on a sloppy track and splashed to a 4½-length victory over Champagne Charlie, with Impecunious third. James Moseley on Impecunious claimed foul against Secretariat, saying the winner knocked his mount against Champagne Charlie, but the stewards disallowed the claim.

Secretariat, who paid a winning mutuel of $2.40, carried the Derby weight of 126 pounds over seven furlongs in 1:23 1-5 for his eighth victory, six in stakes, in 10 starts. He earned $16,650 from a purse of $27,750 and boosted his bankroll to $473,054.

Timeless Moment, who had a victory and two seconds in five starts last year, ran six furlongs in 1:09 4-5 for a head victory under 117 pounds. Burch's plans for the Paul Mellonowned Damascus colt were not known.

Foreman Set For Ellis?

Miami (AP) — Boxing promoter Chris Dundee has offered heavyweight champion George Foreman $1 million to defend his title against Jimmy Ellis, a MiamiBeach spokesman said Sunday.

David Berman said Dundee tendered the offer on behalf of a group of Miami area boxing enthusiasts in a telegram to Dick Sadler, Foreman's manager, in Hawyard, Calif.

Berman quoted the telegram as saying the "Mendoza Group ... will pay you $1 million to defend your title against Jimmy Ellis any Tuesday in May or June at the Miami Beach Convention Hall."

The Mendoza Group, which Berman said was named for an early fighter, includes "some of Miami's most prominent business people," the telegram said. Named were advertising executive Murray Gaby, oilman Gary Belcher, attorney Richard Marx, real estate developer Al Sokolsky and Dr. Leo Termin.

OSU Wins At Arlington

Arlington, Tex. (AP) Oklahoma State won its fifth straight University title and Fort Worth Dunbar its first high school crown Saturday at the tenth annual Arlington Relays.

The Cowboys scored heavily in the distance events, including a five-place sweep in the three-mile run, to outdistance Louisiana Tech 116-71½.

West Texas State was third with 44 points followed by Texas Tech with 17 and the University of Texas at Arlington with 16½.

OSU's Dennis Schultz was named the meet's outstanding performer winning the 220 yards and tying the meet record with a 9.2 in the 100 yard dash.

Wesley Smith of Louisiana Tech broke two meet records, with 48-6½ in the triple jump and 25-1¾ in the long jump.

The other meet records set were by Louisiana Tech's Ricky Stubbs with 13.5 in the 120-yard high hurdles, Mike Marks of Oklahoma State with 59-8¾ in the shot and George Thornton of Louisiana Tech with 6-10¼ in the high jump.

Reds' Tolan Eyes Improved Hitting

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Tolan was named Comeback Player on the Year in 1972, but the Cincinnati Reds' centerfielder is looking for bigger and better things this year.

Tolan missed the entire 1971 season when he twice ruptured the Achilles tendon in his right leg, but came back last season and hit .283, drove in 82 runs and stole 42 bases for the National League champions.

"I'm hoping this year to get back to the .300 mark," said Tolan, who hit .305 and .310 in the two years before his injury.

"I should be stronger having a whole year of playing behind me."

The one thing that disappointed Tolan last season was that he hit only eight home runs.

"I'm hoping to get up to 15 or 20 this season. If I'd hit seven more last year I'm sure I would have gotten 100 runs batted in," Tolan said.

Tolan stayed out of the Reds' first five exhibition games. Then, in his first appearance, he went 2-for-3 and followed that with 3-for-3 against Boston, including a triple and a home run.

"There's no reason Bobby shouldn't hit .300," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

Tolan said that his greatest satisfaction coming back from two operations was that he was able to regain the speed that made him the National League's stolen base champion in 1970 when he had 57.

"I got 42 steals last year but I could have had more. I let Joe Morgan do most of the running late in the year," Tolan said. "I'm capable of getting 60 this season if I want it that bad."

Memphis State Trio Honored

Houston (AP) — Midwest Regional basketball champion Memphis State placed three players on the all tournament team, including center Larry Kenon, forward Ronnie Robinson and guard Larry Finch.

Finch, who scored 32 points in Memphis State's 92-72 victory over Kansas State in the NCAA regional finals, was the high scorer for the tournament with 57 points. He hit 25 against South Carolina in the opener.

Others on the all-tournament team were South Carolina freshman sharpshooter Alex English and Southwestern Louisiana's Dwight Lamar.

Karikari Ties Track Record

Boulder, Colo. (AP) — Chene Karikari of Ghana, a freshman at the University of Colorado, sprinted the 60-yard low hurdles in 6.5 seconds Saturday at the Frank Potts Invitational track meet, tying the world indoor record currently held by three other collegians.

Seven meet records also fell as 225 athletes from 18 schools participated in the competition. Karikari also set one of those 5.9 seconds in the 60-yard dash, and five others went to his CU teammates.

They included a 17-feet 1-inch pole vault by Jim Speer, 6.9 seconds in the 60-yard high hurdles by Wayne Lockwood, Kingsley Adams' 49-feet-11-inch triple jump and Mark Mounsey's 6-feet-10-inch high jump.

Leighton Hope of North Platte, Neb. Junior College set a meet record with a 440-yard run in 48.5 seconds.

Karikari's 6.5 second run in the low hurdles ties the world mark currently shared by CU's Marcus Walker, Oklahoma's Wayne Long and George Byers of Kansas.

Storms Threaten Northeast, South

By The Associated Press

Possible flooding continued to threaten portions of the South on Sunday while in Michigan, high winds were all that remained of a late winter snowstorm which drove hundreds of residents from homes.

The storm that battered Michigan weakened as it moved east, but heavy snow warnings were posted for northeast Ohio, much of western Pennsylvania and western New York.

Due to heavy rains in the last two days, the Mississippi River continued to rise in Louisiana. Serious flooding was reported in Mississippi. Many Louisiana streams were expected to reach flood stage Sunday night or early Monday.

In Chattanooga, Mayor Robert Kirk Walker estimated flood damage to his city alone at more than $35 million. Officials of the Tennessee Valley Authority called the inundation a "once in a century" occurence.

In Michigan, high winds continued to pound the eastern shoreline, causing waves 10 to 15 feet high which chewed further into the already eroded beaches.

Along Saginaw Bay, officials said roughly one-quarter of Bay County, or 71,000 acres, was under water blown off Lake Huron.

States of emergency were declared in nine counties, where National Guardsmen moved in to help with hundreds of evacuations.

In Calhoun County, state police estimated 4,000 motorists were stranded Saturday night by snow-choked highways and forced to put up in churches, schools and other makeshift shelters.

By Sunday night, however, most of the motorists were on their way and evacuees along the shoreline returned home.

The storm dumped 21 inches in the Bay City area, 17 inches in Jackson and 15 inches in Lansing.

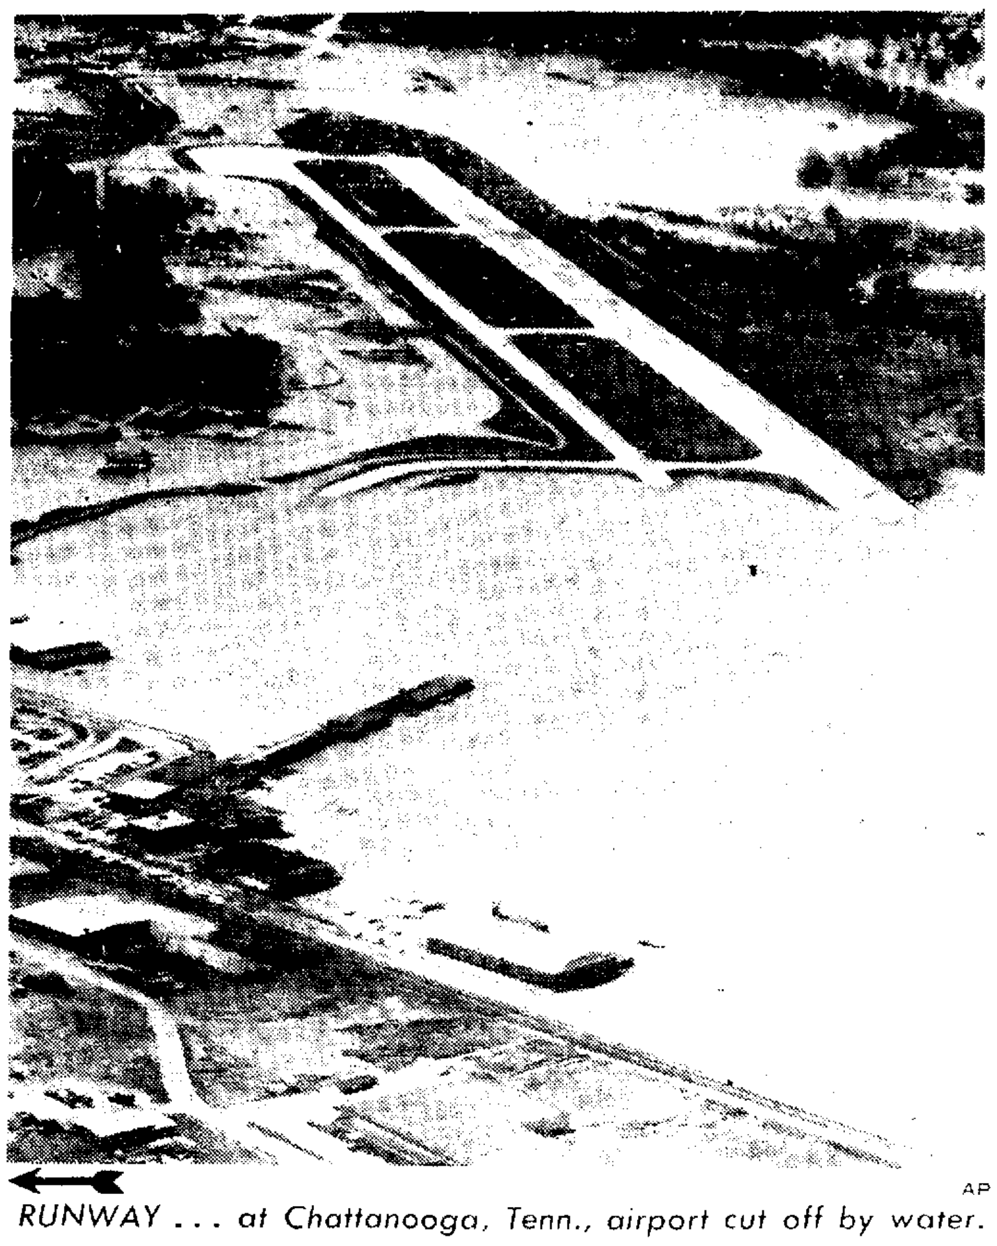

Winds preceding the storm from Michigan pounded the east coast.

Greensboro, N.C., recorded winds gusting to 50 miles per hour. Temperatures plunged to their lowest levels in weeks as freeze and frost warnings were posted in the peach- and apple-growing areas in the Carolinas south through Georgia.

Officials in Mississippi expected the Tombigbee River at Columbus to crest Sunday night as high as 13 feet above normal flood stage.

President Nixon was asked to declare parts of Mississippi a disaster area.

Flooding in Greenwood, Miss., left city streets two to three feet under water.

One Burned In Blaze On Freighter

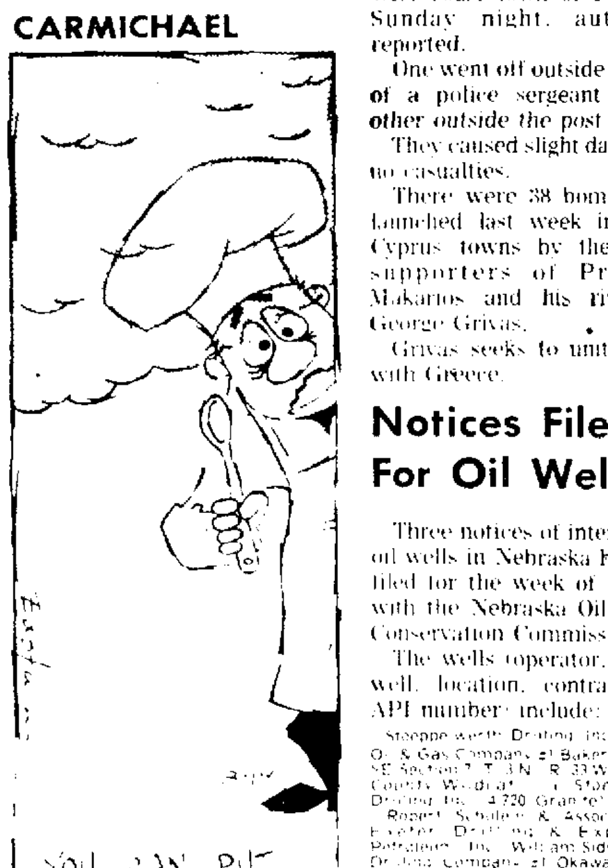

DOVER, England (AP) — Fire burned out the 6,553-ton Greek freighter JOHS-P on Sunday in the English Channel. Its skipper, 28 crewmen and one woman were rescued.

One of the crew was badly burned in the blaze, nine miles off Dungeness.

"The fire was so fierce that the ship's metal lifeboats were melting like tallow candles," a British coast guard spokesman said.

Late in the afternoon two tugs began towing the smoldering freighter to Antwerp on the instructions of its owners. Shipping in the area was warned to keep clear in case of an explosion.

2 Dynamitings, No Casualties In Cyprus Feud

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Two dynamite charges thrown from speeding cars exploded in the west coast town of Paphos on Sunday night, authorities reported.

One went off outside the home of a police sergeant and the other outside the post office.

They caused slight damage but no casualties.

There were 38 bomb attacks launched last week in various Cyprus towns by the feuding supporters of President Makarios and his rival Gen. George Grivas.

Grivas seeks to unite Cyprus with Greece.

Social Security To Make Reports Public

WASHINGTON (AP) — Breaking a seven-year policy, the Social Security Administration announced Sunday it will make public in the future all new Medicare survey and investigative reports.

But the agency said earlier reports will remain confidential. This was a blow to proponents of cradle-to-grave health insurance legislation who have sought the reports on private carriers.

Until now, and over the protests of newsmen and congressmen, the reports have been deemed confidential under the 1939 Social Security Act.

New regulations will make available reports on deficiencies found in state surveys of hospitals, skilled nursing homes, home health agencies and independent laboratories; performance evaluations on carriers, intermediaries and state agencies; performance reports on providers, and the names of doctors and providers found to have overcharged or convicted of submitting false claims.

It includes contract-review reports on the 24 commercial health insurance companies, the National Association of Blue Shield Plans and affiliates of the Blue Cross Association which pay Medicare claims and are reimbursed by the government.

A Blue Cross spokesman in Chicago said: "We have always been accountable to the public. We support the idea of disclosure of information about administration of any public programs including information about Medicare and our performance."

Disclosure applies only to reports completed after Jan. 31, Social Security said, and in each case subjects of reports or surveys will have 30 days to submit statements before they are released.

Deficiency surveys will be made public, generally beginning in May, at the agency's 1,000 local and district offices, a spokesman said.

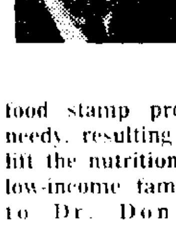

Performance evaluations will be open for inspection at 10 regional offices and the Baltimore headquarters.

In the case of doctors and providers found by intermediaries to have charged excessively, the agency said, names will be released only after consultation with a professional medical society and after the person has had a chance to respond.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Food Price Rise Traced To Variety Of Factors

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Merryle Rukeyser

Danger Seen

If we are to safeguard the future promise of American life, despite the evils of inflation, it is essential to grasp clearly the nature of the current economic disease.

The realities shouldn't be beclouded by any ill-advised effort to play internal class warfare in face of the maladjustments caused by depreciation of the dollar's buying power.

This subtle danger became evident when George Meany, president, AFL-CIO, on the TV program "Meet the Press", correctly referred to the "emotional" impact of the recent sharp rise in food prices. For we, the people will be suckers if in the spirit of emotional economics we make a simpleminded search for scapegoats, instead of ferreting out the root causes of inflation.

It is playing the blind man's bluff to turn the passing economic dislocations into occasions for Marxian class warfare which sets the poor against the rich. Those who sound off at dinner parties without precise knowledge are prone to shed crocodile tears for the poor. Inflation is objectionable for many reasons. Socially, it falls with varying incidence on different groups. And in a competitive system of rewards and incentives, it is obvious that the high bracket income recipients have more buying power than those at the subsistence level.

Basic Truism

But sad as is the basic truism that we differ among ourselves in aptitudes, talents, skills and capacity for self discipline, it's a distortion to indicate that food prices have been rising primarily because the rich set elaborate tables. Of course, they do, but this isn't a new factor to account for the upsurge in food prices. The demand in terms of tonnage has been very great, and domestic food absorption has been paralleled by foreign buying as a result of agricultural short falls in the Soviet Union and elsewhere in Eastern Europe, and Communist China, India, and Australia.

As for the contrived effort to set the poor against the rich, a factor, entirely justifiable socially, for the demand-push influence in inflating food prices has been the expansion of the food stamp program for the needy, resulting in an effort to lift the nutritional standards of low-income families, according to Dr. Don Paarlberg, agricultural economic director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Likewise, increased payments to welfare families have enlarged the effective demand for food. The increase in real income of U.S. workers and in personal incomes generally also increased the demand for food.

Long-Term Cycles

On the supply side, livestock moves in long-term cycles, and after the holding down of supplies during the recession, cattle raisers last year, despite growing demand, held some animals off the market to build up breeders and stocks for the future. These developments, plus crop shortages overseas, were supply and demand factors unrelated to monetary inflation. In fact, the U.S. inflation rate has dropped to about half that of other leading industrial companies. The two dollar devaluations within 14 months have complicated the economic process by increasing the cost to American of imported foodstuffs.

Instead of going off half cocked, it makes sense to encourage farmers to ease the burden by increasing the output of cattle, hog and foodstuffs. The Department of Agriculture expresses the hope that by the end of the year such improvement in supply will dampen down food prices.

It is important to try to diagnose dispassionately the causes of higher prices, and to take remedial staps. It brings only frustration to use the public hardships as an occasion for demagoguery.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

McGovern Favors Hike In Federal Food Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern Sunday endorsed a call for an $860 million increase in federal food programs.

He said what he called the Nixon administration's "standstill" food budget for the poor raises serious questions about the White House commitment to end hunger in America.

The proposed increase was recommended in a study by the staff of the Select Committee on Hunger and Human Needs which McGovern heads.

The South Dakota Democrat said the extra money, about 20 per cent more than the administration's $4 billion food budget, was "neither unsound nor imprudent."

"Its thrust is simply to keep the nation on course toward a reasonably timely completion of the job of ending involuntary poverty-related hunger and of developing a sound national nutrition policy for all our people," McGovern said.

The staff report was accompanied by a rebuttal from Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., a committee member.

"The time is long past when anybody can seriously question the dedication of this administration to the war on hunger," Percy said. "The record of the last four years is one of astounding progress in reaching the needy and hungry with food assistance."

Percy said that participation in the food stamp program has quadrupled since 1969, that more than twice the number of free and reduced price school lunches are now being served and that school lunches now reach about 2 million children compared to 800,000 three years ago.

McGovern said, however the administration's budget request takes no account of at least eight million persons he said are eligible but not signed up.

The staff report pegged those eligible for the school lunch program at about 12.5 million.

It said the biggest obstacle in the school lunch program is the fact that 18,000 of the nation's 100,000 schools lack kitchens or lunchrooms.

Virtually all of these are rural schools or inner city elementary schools, the report said and recommended a full $40 million be spent for equipment instead of the $16 million recommended by the administration.

Sources: Israel Braces For Attack On Palestine

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian sources reported Sunday that Israel has massed troops and armor along its border with Lebanon in preparation for a possible attack against Palestinian camps.

Lebanon's acting premier, Albert Mkheiber, said the government has "no adequate information to substantiate reports of troops being massed on our southern border."

But Beirut newspapers said nearly 10,000 Israeli soldiers and 500 armored vehicles were seen gathered near the border, and one paper reported that Lebanese and Palestinian forces were braced for an Israeli attack.

Ever since the Arab-Israeli war in 1967, Israel has been staging military attacks on villages and Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon and Syria in a bid to stamp out the guerrilla movement.

Syria has been critical of Egypt and other Arab countries for not coming to its aid when Israeli jets bombed military positions in the Golan Heights and refugee camps near Damascus recently. Hundreds of Palestinians and Syrians were reported killed in these raids.

The Lebanese army last year cleared southern Lebanon of Palestinian guerrillas. But last month Israel attacked the refugee camps in Nahr el Bared and Badawi in northern Lebanon, about 125 miles from Lebanon's border with Israel.

LHHC To Hear Review, Discuss Work Program

Continued review and discussion of the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council work program is the major item on the agenda for a meeting of the council Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at noon in the Lincoln Center Building.

The LHHC will also hear reports on environmental health conditions in southeast Nebraska and on a federal grant application of the Lincoln-Lancaster Mental Health Center.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Promptly Relieved

Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief from Such Burning Itch and Pain in Many Cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it

IS I O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CRYPTOQUOTES

K I Q Y J W N C F O J D F P Q K W N Z —
H F Z F I Q I Y K O Z F D F A R S W I B F D G W
F D A H O W H W Q H O W C W W O G U W Z N W
F Q S I O W I F K A F W O Y I W U N A R Y

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 3-19
